Survey Confirms Fact Food Prices Climbing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A housewives' budget brigade concluded today that government price indexes fairly reflect a hard fact of life in the 1960s: it is costing more and more to feed the family.

Many housewives seem firmly convinced that food prices just about doubled in the past year. They didn't, but government figures, supported by an independent Associated Press survey in March, show that the cost of a typical week's shopping went up nearly 7 per cent.

Meats, however, have risen sharply. Based on the government's national price averages, it cost $6.22 to buy one pound each of sirloin steak, hamburger, pork chops, ham, bacon and lamb chops in mid-March, compared with $5.12 in mid-March of 1965 — a rise of 21.5 per cent.

By contrast, the other items on the shopping list of the AP's budget brigade rose only 1.5 per cent.

The AP's budget brigade figures, and the government's, should enable skeptical shoppers to judge for themselves. The AP housewives themselves started out highly skeptical on their 12-city spot survey.

They said food prices over-all were unquestionably high, although many a penny could be shaved off the grocery bill by determined bargain-hunting from store to store. Some made the point that few housewives can spare so much time from their other home-making duties.

If a housewife does all her shopping at one store, the researcher in St. Louis said, "It doesn't matter much which store you shop at — they'll get all your money anyway."

"Each store's weekly bargains really were bargains," she reported. "They cut off as much as 20 or 30 cents per item. But they seem to make it up somewhere else."

The Associated Press budget brigade priced a list of 38 to 40 food items, from potatoes to sirloin steak, in three supermarkets in each of the 12 cities on March 10.

The results were set alongside returns from U. S. Department of Labor checkers who shopped a wider range of stores in the same cities at approximately the same time. (The government checkers also cover stores in 50 smaller cities for which no price breakdown is published.)

In the 12 cities where the AP paralleled the government survey, average total bills were remarkably similar and in the case of St. Louis came out at precisely the same figure — $20.43.

The government goes about its monthly price-gathering in a coolly scientific way, using 125 checkers working under field supervisors and supported by computers at home base. The AP survey was a matronly affair on a much smaller scale but following in the footsteps of the government checkers.

Leftist Japs Planning New Protest against U.S. A-Sub

planned another big demonstration in Yokosuka tonight and protested to the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo against the first visit to Tokyo Bay by a U.S. nuclear-powered submarine.

About 12,000 persons staged three demonstrations at Yokosuka Monday as the submarine Snook docked at the U.S. naval base there to give the crew five days of rest and recreation.

The demonstrators were brought to the port 30 miles south of Tokyo by the Communist and Socialist parties. Police said 30 policemen and 21 students were injured in clashes Monday and another 20 persons were hurt Sunday, when the protests started.

None of the demonstrators molested the sailors from the Snook or from the carrier Kitty Hawk and other American ships in port. Weaving through the demonstrators, the sailors went as usual to Yokosuka's shops and 270 bars and clubs.

"We do not intend to harass American sailors or cause trouble," said one demonstration organizer. "We want our protests to be peaceful and orderly."

Privately some demonstrators said they did not want to do anything to hurt Yokosuka's thriving trade with U.S. servicemen. But both police and demonstration leaders said they were worried about members of the radical Zengakuren Students Association.

"They are hotheads," said an organizer. "They are here on their own, and not part of our group."

Police and leftist leaders blamed the students for most of the scuffles with police. The students also tore down posters which shopkeepers put up to welcome the Snook.

Noisy leftist demonstrations accompanied each of the eight visits by five other U.S. nuclear subs to Sasebo, another U.S. naval base 500 miles southwest of Tokyo. The number of demonstrators had dwindled with each call, however.

The leftists stepped up their protests for the Snook's port call because it is the first to Yokosuka and because Yokosuka is close to heavily populated Tokyo. Authorities mobilized 5,000 policemen to keep the demonstrators in check.

Sandusky Sees Freight Upset

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — Heavy equipment from Cleveland and Toledo worked today to clear at least one track of the New York Central system line where 37 freight cars derailed at the Campbell Street crossing.

The 107-car freight was westbound from Buffalo to Chicago.

Police said only eight of the derailed cars were loaded. The derailment knocked out power to an area of about 12 blocks and two hospitals went on emergency power.

A total of 542 persons died in traffic accidents during the holiday weekend, based on an increase of 800 million miles driven because of the holiday.

This is about 25 per cent more than the total miles driven during the same period on a non-holiday weekend.

The highest previous traffic death toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was 474 last year.

In 1963, 525 persons were killed during a four-day Memorial Day weekend.

The number of deaths over the holiday weekend was above the preholiday estimate made by the safety council. The council estimated between 460 and 540 persons would die on the highways, based on an increase of 800 million miles driven because of the holiday.

This is about 25 per cent more than the total miles driven during the same period on a non-holiday weekend.

In addition, 47 persons drowned and 93 died in boating

Javits Is Quietly Running For No. 2 Republican Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is an American tradition that no politician runs openly for vice president. Sen. Jacob K. Javits isn't exactly breaking that tradition but he may be bending it.

In a field where few men care to publicly venture, Javits quietly is trying to narrow down — to himself — the GOP's choice of a 1968 vice-presidential candidate.

Although the New York Republican insists publicly he has made no decision, he has told friends privately he would be willing to give up his Senate seat to get the Republican second-place nomination two years from now.

Javits' current term expires in 1969 and New York has no provision by which he can run for both the Senate and vice president.

Behind Javits' willingness to risk his political future is his desire to become the first Jewish candidate on a major party ticket. It is his private opinion that this would be a crowning achievement for a political career in which he has gone all out for civil rights.

It also is Javits' view that if John F. Kennedy had not won the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, it would have been another decade before a Roman Catholic breakthrough in the political field. He feels the Jews may be 10 years away from a similar achievement if he fails to get the second place spot in 1968.

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has gone a long way toward linking Javits' vice-presidential aspirations to the presidential hopes of

Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

In a Long Island, N.Y. speech last week, Rockefeller said he had bowed out of the presidential picture "forever" and suggested that Romney and Javits should share the top spots on the 1968 Republican ticket.

The New York governor also said he would be in favor of Javits' running for the 1968 nomination as a favorite son candidate from New York.

If Rockefeller is re-elected, Javits' friends will be reminding him of the favorite son support. If the governor should lose, the delegation will be Javits' by default.

These prospects put the New York senator in a potentially powerful position to have some thing to say about the top nomination. He doesn't necessarily have to hitch his aspirations to Romney's wagon.

Veteran Cuba Commando's Raid Fails

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Exile

sources say a commando leader with a record of more than a dozen anti-Castro missions to Cuba led last weekend's ill-fated infiltration attempt denounced by the Cuban government.

They said they had not learned the fate of the 39-year-old revolutionary, Tony Cuesta. A Cuban government communiqué said two invaders were killed, two men were wounded and captured and two were missing and presumed drowned.

Cuesta's last reported action occurred last November, when a vessel under his command was shot at the waterfront home of Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos. The men missed their target but hit an aquarium 30 yards from the home.

Cuesta, military commander of a group called Commandos L, reportedly headed a raiding party that shelled and almost sank the Soviet freighter Baku at a Cuban port three years ago.

Everything 'Go' For Gemini Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —

The "go" light flashed brightly to tracking stations around the world today for the Gemini 9 spacemen to embark on a three-day exploration of some unknowns of space travel.

"We're ready to go," said Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, his rookie pilot, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, soon to become the world's champion cosmic stroller, agreed.

They'll ride a mighty Titan rocket into the hostile void of space at 12:38 p.m. (EDT) Wednesday to search the skies for a stubby target satellite, then boldly latch Gemini 9's nose to it.

Their target, known as an Augmented Target Docking Adapter — ATDA, will be powered into a 185-mile high circular course around the globe by an Atlas booster one hour and 38 minutes before the Titan cranks its engines.

Healthy and trained to razor sharpness, the Gemini twins planned a final review of their vital, action-packed mission with top space agency officials during the day. They also hoped to crowd in a few more hours of practice sessions in a mockup version of the tiny Gemini spaceship.

Technicians, sailing along without a hitch on preparations for launching both the Titan and Atlas rockets, scheduled five-hour check of all systems aboard the 11-story tall Titan before beginning the final countdown leading to launch.

The weather forecast, sometimes a troublemaker to the nation's space efforts, called for satisfactory conditions at blast-off time, both at Cape Kennedy and the ocean recovery areas.

Gemini 9 will be the second half of a double-barreled U.S. space spectacular this week. If all goes as planned, while Stafford and Cernan sleep their first night in space, a Surveyor spacecraft will try to gently settle its three spidery legs on the lunar surface.

Thursday morning, the world may be seeing television pictures of the moon's landscape shortly before Cernan sets out on a record breaking space walk.

A lean, 32-year-old Chicago native, Cernan plans to ease himself out of Gemini 9's right hatch for an exotic stroll through the cosmos that will whip him one and a half times around the world at 17,500 miles an hour.

For 2½ hours, he will be a human satellite.

During the initial daylight time he is outside, he will be fed oxygen through a 25-foot umbilical cord from the spacecraft. Then, with a rocket pack on his back, he will attach himself to a 140-foot rope and shoot from place to place for about an hour.

All he needs to survive — pressure for his suit and oxygen for life — will be fed from the highly sophisticated maneuvering back pack. The pack will be used instead of a space gun like Air Force Lt. Col. Edward H. White had for the first American space walk last June.

Cernan's elaborate stint as a space walker clearly will be a highlight of Gemini 9's space venture. However, Stafford and Cernan also plan two re-rendezvous maneuvers with the ATDA, both critical to future U.S. space efforts.

Surveyor I Aims at Moon

Soft Landing
Chances Good

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) —

Surveyor I cruised today toward a new and hopefully smoother landing site on the moon after a tricky steering maneuver 97,000 miles out in space.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials, who are guiding the 2,200-pound camera-carrying craft toward a soft landing in the dry Sea of Storms late Wednesday, said Surveyor I responded properly to all commands during the intricate change of course.

They said it would take several hours of tracking to be sure Surveyor's new course will bring it down, as now planned, about 20 miles north of the point picked prior to Monday's launch.

The new site was chosen to give the spacecraft the smoothest possible landing area in the 62-mile diameter target circle — at the western edge of the 1,700-mile long equatorial strip selected for future Apollo astronaut touchdowns.

Like the Soviet Luna 9, which soft-landed and televised pictures from the lunar surface February 3, Surveyor is pioneering a technique planned to deposit manned craft gently on the moon.

This technique — descending slowly while balancing on the thrust of downward firing rockets — is believed the only safe way to land on the airless moon.

In the maneuver at 2:45 a.m. EDT, the spacecraft was ordered to roll and yaw slowly to the left, aiming it in the desired

Compromise Is Hinted

Fire Suicide
Halt Is Sought

SAIGON (AP) — Buddhist leaders held a surprise meeting with leaders of the military junta today, apparently the first round of talks to end the anti-government campaign by compromise.

The monks met with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, a Roman Catholic and a target in the Buddhist campaign to force the military junta to resign in favor of a provisional civilian regime.

The meeting came after another Buddhist, a 17-year-old girl, had burned herself to death in Hue, center of government opposition in the North. She was the fifth and possibly the sixth suicide in the wave of anti-government protests.

Thich (venerable) Tam Chau, head of the powerful Buddhist Institute, headed the delegation of four that called at heavily guarded Gia Long Palace, Thieu's residence.

An institute spokesman said no statement will be made for the time being.

The influential Monk Thich Tri Quang, leader of the Buddhist struggle movement in the north provinces, issued an appeal earlier in the day for a halt to protest suicides.

Quang said he spoke for the supreme patriarch of South Vietnamese Buddhists, Tich Tinh Khiet, when he urged "all Buddhists to cease acts of self-sacrifice in the name of Dharma (the Buddhist gospel)."

Once Around Roundtown

CIRCLEVILLE Highway Patrol Post personnel issued 66 citations to traffic law violators during the Memorial Day weekend. They assisted 115 motorists whose vehicles developed trouble.

Patrol Post spokesmen reported today not one accident involving serious injury occurred on highways in this county during the weekend.

Members of the Patrol Auxiliary manned the desk at Circleville headquarters in order to release every available officer for duty.

Democrat Losses May Mean Extra Congressional Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Heavy or even moderate Democratic losses in the 1966 congressional elections could produce a postelection session of Congress this year, say some congressional sources.

If the pattern of past off-year elections is followed this year, Democrats now in control will lose some House seats. If they lose as many as 15 or 20 they still would have numerical control but not voting control of "Great Society" legislation.

House leaders still are pointing for adjournment not later than October, which almost certainly would leave some of the President's legislation stranded.

The pending unfinished business is loaded with political dynamite and many members seeking re-election apparently would rather not have to go on record on some bills before the Nov. 8 balloting.

All 435 House seats will be at stake then and many Democrats, elected by slim pluralities in 1964, are aware that a few unpopular votes on controversial issues could tip the balance against them this year.

New members elected in November won't take their seats until the 90th Congress convenes in January, however, and the "lame ducks" stay on until then.

Should the Democrats lose many House seats, therefore, it would not surprise congressional veterans if President Johnson called a special session of Congress after the election in a final effort to get action of some of his legislation.

Democrats who win in November would be over the pre-election jitters. The losers would have nothing to lose, and some of them could be in need of jobs at the President's disposal.

Even with their present numerical control of 2 to 1 in both the Senate and the House, Democrats have had trouble pushing through some "Great Society" measures.

More than 60 incumbent Democrats won election to the House two years ago by margins of less than 5 per cent of the votes cast in their districts. Most of them are ardent supporters of the Johnson administration. It is in this group that Democratic election casualties may be heaviest, with the losers being replaced by conservative Republicans.

Panel Advises Schooling at Young Age

WASHINGTON (AP) — An education commission called today for mandatory schooling for four- and five-year-olds and urged the federal government to provide general support for the revolutionary proposal.

The Educational Policies Commission said "education in this two-year period can affect the character of the child and all his future life more deeply than his education at any later period."

"Early childhood education, properly conducted promises significant benefits to American life," it said.

In a report titled "Universal Opportunity for Early Childhood Education," the commission described the current practice of starting children to school at the age of six as "obsolete" since most children that age "have already developed a considerable part of the intellectual ability they will possess as adults."

The commission, jointly sponsored by the National Education Association and the American

2 Women Hurt By Subway Bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — One woman suffered a serious eye injury and another was hurt slightly when a bomb exploded in a telephone booth in a Manhattan subway station.

The explosion Monday was beneath the Municipal Building, a short distance from City Hall. It tore apart two phone booths and showered glass and metal in an area where about 10 persons were walking.

Police said it could have been far more serious if the device, which resembled a huge firecracker, had gone off on a normal work day.

three more British-built buses arrived Monday in Havana. Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said the buses will begin operating immediately on Havana streets.

The broadcast said 654 British buses now are serving the Havana metropolitan area and another 146 vehicles will be added to the capital city's transportation system before the end of the year.

Survey Confirms Fact Food Prices Climbing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A housewives' budget brigade concluded today that government price indexes fairly reflect a hard fact of life in the 1960s: it is costing more and more to feed the family.

Meats, however, have risen sharply. Based on the government's national price averages, it cost $6.22 to buy one pound each of sirloin steak, hamburger, pork chops, ham, bacon and lamb chops in mid-March, compared with $5.12 in mid March of 1965 — a rise of 21.5 per cent.

They said food prices over-all were unquestionably high, although many a penny could be shaved off the grocery bill by determined bargain-hunting from store to store. Some made the point that few housewives can spare so much time from their other home making duties.

If a housewife does all her shopping at one store, the researcher in St. Louis said, "It doesn't matter much which store you shop at — they'll get all your money anyway."

"Each store's weekly bargains really were bargains," she reported. "They cut off as much as 20 or 30 cents per item, but they seem to make it up somewhere else."

The Associated Press budget brigade priced a list of 38 to 40 food items, from potatoes to sirloin steak, in three supermarkets in each of the 12 cities on March 10.

The results were set alongside returns from U. S. Department of Labor checkers who shopped a wider range of stores in the same cities at approximately the same time. (The government checkers also cover stores in 50 smaller cities, for which no price breakdown is published).

In the 12 cities where the AP paralleled the government survey, average total bills were remarkably similar and in the case of St. Louis came out at precisely the same figure — $20.43.

The government goes about its monthly price-gathering in a coolly scientific way, using 125 checkers working under field supervisors and supported by computers at home base. The AP survey was a matronly affair on a much smaller scale but following in the footsteps of the government checkers.

Ohio Traffic Toll Is Held To about 15

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A determined crackdown on traffic violators helped contribute to a relatively low holiday weekend death toll—about half of what was predicted—but well over a dozen persons died on Ohio highways.

At least 15 died in traffic accidents during the long 78-hour Memorial Day weekend, far below the 33 deaths predicted by the Department of Highway Safety for the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday. Not one multiple-fatality accident was reported.

In other deaths there were at least six due to drowning and of those, one was attributed to a boating accident.

Cooler weather: the latter part of the weekend may have kept some motorists from taking outings in the Buckeye State, helping to lower the toll.

Last year there were 32 traffic deaths during the Memorial Day weekend.

State safety officials had hoped for a deathless holiday weekend and expressed confidence that the toll could be reduced. Orders were put out to law enforcement agencies to crack down on reckless drivers.

accidents over the weekend.
The highest previous traffic
death toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was 474 last year.

In 1963, 525 persons were killed during a four-day Memorial Day weekend.

The number of deaths over the holiday weekend was above
the preholiday estimate made by the safety council. The council estimated between 460 and 540 persons would die on the highways, based on an increase of 800 million miles driven because of the holiday.

This is about 25 per cent more than the total miles driven during the same period on a non-holiday weekend.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is an American tradition that no politician runs openly for vice president. Sen. Jacob K. Javits isn't exactly breaking that tradition but he may be bending it.
In a field where few men care to publicly venture, Javits quietly is trying to narrow down — to himself — the GOP's choice of a 1968 vice presidential candidate.

Although the New York Republican insists publicly he has made no decision, he has told friends privately he would be willing to give up his Senate seat to get the Republican second-place nomination two years from now.

Javits' current term expires in 1969 and New York has no provision by which he can run for both the Senate and vice president.

Behind Javits' willingness to risk his political future is his desire to become the first Jewish candidate on a major party ticket. It is his private opinion that this would be a crowning achievement for a political career in which he has gone all out for civil rights.

It also is Javits' view that if John F. Kennedy had won the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, it would have been another decade before a Roman Catholic breakthrough in the political field. He feels the Jews may be 10 years away from a similar achievement if he fails to get the second place spot in '68.

Republican Gov. Nelson A.
Rockefeller of New York has gone a long way toward linking Javits' vice-presidential aspirations to the presidential hopes of

Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

In a Long Island, N.Y. speech last week, Rockefeller said he had bowed out of the presidential picture "forever" and suggested that Romney and Javits should share the top spots on the 1968 Republican ticket.

The New York governor also said he would be in favor of Javits' running for the 1968 nomination as a favorite son candidate from New York.

If Rockefeller is re-elected, Javits' friends will be reminding him of the favorite son support. If the governor should lose, the delegation will be Javits' by default.

These prospects put the New York senator in a potentially powerful position to have some thing to say about the top nomination. He doesn't necessarily have to hitch his aspirations to Romney's wagon.

Everything 'Go' For Gemini Shot

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)
— The "go" light flashed brightly to tracking stations highly sophisticated maneuvering back pack. The pack will be used instead of a space gun like Air Force Lt. Col. Edward H.

Cernan's elaborate stint as a both critical to future U.S. space efforts.

Soft Landing
Chances Good

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor I cruised today toward a new and hopefully smoother landing site on the moon after a tricky steering maneuver 97,000 miles out in space.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials, who are guiding the 2-200-pound camera-carrying craft toward a soft landing in the dry Sea of Storms late Wednesday, said Surveyor responded properly to all commands during the intricate change of course.

They said it would take several hours of tracking to be sure Surveyor's new course will bring it down, as now planned, about 20 miles north of the point picked prior to Monday's launch.

The new site was chosen to give the spacecraft the smoothest possible landing area in the

Fire Suicide
Halt Is Sought

SAIGON (AP) — Buddhist leaders held a surprise meeting with leaders of the military junta today, apparently the first round of talks to end the anti-government campaign by compromise.

The monks met with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, a Roman Catholic and a target in the Buddhist campaign to force the military junta to resign in favor of a provisional civilian regime.

The meeting came after another Buddhist, a 17-year-old girl, had burned herself to death in Hue, center of government opposition in the North. She was the fifth and possibly the sixth suicide in the wave of antigov-ernment protests.

Thich (venerable) Tam Chau, head of the powerful Buddhist Institute, headed the delegation of four that called at heavily guarded Gia Long Palace, Thieu's residence.

An institute spokesman said no statement will be made for the time being.

The influential Monk Thich Tri Quang, leader of the Buddhist struggle movement in the north provinces, issued an appeal earlier in the day for a halt to protest suicides.

Quang said he spoke for the supreme patriarch of South Ve-namese Buddhists, Tich Tinh Khiat, when he urged "all Buddhists to cease acts of self-sacrifice in the name of Dharma
(the Buddhist gospel)."

Once Around Roundtown

CIRCLEVILLE Highway Patrol Post personnel issued 66 citations to traffic law violators during the Memorial Day weekend. They assisted 115 motorists whose vehicles developed trouble.

Patrol Post spokesmen reported today not one accident involving serious injury occurred on highways in this county during the weekend.

Members of the Patrol Auxiliary manned the desk at Circleville headquarters in order to release every available officer for duty.

WASHINGTON (AP) —
Heavy or even moderate Democratic losses in the 1966 congressional elections could produce a postelection session of Congress this year, say some congressional sources.

If the pattern of past off-year elections is followed this year, Democrats now in control will lose some House seats. If they lose as many as 15 or 20 they still would have numerical control but not voting control of 'Great Society' legislation.

House leaders still are pointing for adjournment not later than October, which almost certainly would leave some of the President's legislation stranded.

The pending unfinished business is loaded with political dynamite and many members seeking re-election apparently would rather not have to go on record on some bills before the Nov. 8 balloting.

All 435 House seats will be at stake then and many Democrats, elected by slim pluralities in 1964, are aware that a few unpopular votes on controversial issues could tip the balance against them this year.

New members elected in November won't take their seats until the 90th Congress convenes in January, however, and the "lame ducks" stay on until then.

Should the Democrats lose many House seats, therefore, it would not surprise congressional veterans if President Johnson called a special session of Congress after the election in a final effort to get action of some of his legislation.

Democrats who win in November would be over the pre-election jitters. The losers would have nothing to lose, and some of them could be in need of jobs at the President's disposal.

Even with their present numerical control of 2 to 1 in both the Senate and the House, Democrats have had trouble pushing through some "Great Society" measures.

Leftist Japs Planning New Protest against U.S. A-Sub

TOKYO (AP) — Leftists
planned another big demonstration in Yokosuka tonight and protested to the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo against the first visit to Tokyo Bay by a U.S. nuclear-powered submarine.

About 12,000 persons staged three demonstrations at Yokosuka Monday as the submarine Snook docked at the U.S. naval base there to give the crew five days of rest and recreation.

The demonstrators were brought to the port 30 miles south of Tokyo by the Communist and Socialist parties. Police said 30 policemen and 21 students were injured in clashes Monday and another 20 persons were hurt Sunday, when the protests started.

None of the demonstrators molested the sailors from the Snook or from the carrier Kitty Hawk and other American ships in port. Weaving through the demonstrators, the sailors went as usual to Yokosuka's shops and 270 bars and clubs.

"We do not intend to harass American sailors or cause trouble," said one demonstration organizer. "We want our protests to be peaceful and orderly."

Privately some demonstrators said they did not want to do anything to hurt Yokosuka's thriving trade with U.S. servicemen. But both police and demonstration leaders said they were worried about members of the radical Zengakuren Students Association.

"They are hotheads," said an organizer. "They are here on their own, and not part of our group."

Police and leftist leaders blamed the students for most of the scuffles with police. The students also tore down posters which shopkeepers put up to welcome the Snook.

Noisy leftist demonstrations accompanied each of the eight visits by five other U.S. nuclear subs to Sasebo, another U.S. naval base 500 miles southwest of Tokyo. The number of demonstrators had dwindled with each call, however.

The leftists stepped up their protests for the Snook's port call because it is the first to Yokosuka and because Yokosuka is close to heavily populated Tokyo.
Authorities mobilized 5,000 policemen to keep the demonstrators in check.

Sandusky Sees Freight Upset

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — Heavy equipment from Cleveland Toledo worked today to clear at least one track of the New York Central system line where 37 freight cars derailed at the Campbell Street crossing.

The 107-car freight was westbound from Buffalo to Chicago.

Police said only eight of the demolished cars were loaded.
The derailment knocked out power to an area of about 12 blocks and two hospitals went on emergency power.

NEW YORK (AP) — One woman suffered a serious eye injury and another was hurt slightly when a bomb exploded in a telephone booth in a Manhattan subway station.

The explosion Monday was beneath the Municipal Building, a short distance from City Hall.
It tore apart two phone booths and showered glass and metal in an area where about 10 persons were walking.

Police said it could have been far more serious if the device, which resembled a huge firecracker, had gone off on a normal work day.

23 More British Buses Delivered to Castro

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Twenty-three more British-built buses arrived Monday in Havana.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said the buses will begin operating immediately on Havana streets.

The broadcast said 654 British buses now are serving the Havana metropolitan area and another 146 vehicles will be added to the capital city's transportation system before the end of the year.

$1 Billion a Year for Traffic Safety Asked after Holiday Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The president of the National Safety Council called for an expenditure of $1 billion a year more for traffic safety today in the wake of a record Memorial Day highway death toll.

President Howard Pyle said this money would be used for an intensified program which he estimated would cut highway fatalities at least in half.

A total of 542 persons died in traffic accidents during the holiday weekend a record for any Memorial Day observance. The period extended from 6 p.m.
local time Friday to midnight Monday.

In addition, 47 persons drowned and 93 died in boating accidents over the weekend.

The highest previous traffic
death toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was 474 last
year.

In 1963, 525 persons were killed during a four-day Memorial Day weekend.

The number of deaths over
the holiday weekend was above
the preholiday estimate made
by the safety council. The council estimated between 460 and 540 persons would die on the highways, based on an increase of 800 million miles driven because of the holiday.

This is about 25 per cent more than the total miles driven during the same period on a non-holiday weekend.

The Associated Press made a comparative count of traffic fatality from 5 p.m. Friday,
May 13, to midnight Monday, May 16, and recorded 376 highway deaths during the period.

Sunny skies and mild temperatures were considered a contributing factor to the traffic congestion as millions of Americans drove to recreation areas, athletic events and family gatherings.

California, with more automobiles and miles of freeways than any other state, recorded the most deaths, 55.

Only Alaska, Hawaii, Rhode Island, Vermont and the District of Columbia got by the weekend without a recorded highway fatality.

The lowest three-day rate for a Memorial Day, since records were initiated, was in 1949 when 204 persons died.

The three-day Christmas holiday of 1965 stands as the most tragic highway period on record with 720 deaths recorded.

Pyle said the additional $1 billion annually he urged be spent would go for more highway safety personnel such as traffic police and safety engineers; improved equipment, such as road signs; more driver training, and better licensing and motor vehicle inspections.

He said some $800 million is now spent annually on traffic safety.

Panel Advises
Association of School Administrators, regularly publishes statements of proposed policy regarding education.

The report emphasized that "children commonly called 'disadvantaged' are in the greatest need for early schooling, for they are most in need of help in developing their ability to live independently and creatively in a modern society."

At present, it said, schooling for four-year-olds is rarely free of cost and therefore is least available to those children who most desperately need it.

But the report added: "Not only those commonly considered disadvantaged are disadvantaged in their lives at home. The pampered also are disadvantaged; so are those whose parents are obsessed with the need to impress and achieve, those whose parents show them little love, those who have little chance to play with other children, those with physical handicaps."

Nurse Homes Give Nod to State Cases
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Nursing Home Council, a group composed mostly of operators of nursing homes in Franklin and central Ohio counties, urged its member homes today to begin accepting state aid to the aged supported patients.

The action followed announcement last week by the Ohio Department of Public Welfare of an increase in allowances for nursing home care for such patients.

Council homes in Franklin County had started a boycott of welfare supported patients in March because they maintained the state was not paying enough for the care of these elderly patients.

Under the increase, which begins July 1, the monthly allowance for average care will be $165 and $200 for maximum care in all of Ohio's 88 counties. Allowances were as low as $111 for average and $155 for maximum care in 76 counties and $155 and $180 in Franklin and 11 other counties.

Massillon Boy, 13, Is Killed by Rifle
MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—Stark County Coroner G. S. Shaheen Monday ruled accidental death in the fatal shooting of Kenneth Baum, 13, who was killed Sunday near his home by a .22 caliber rifle.

Sheriff's deputies are continuing the investigation, and have questioned two teenagers who had been target shooting nearby the Baum home.

Township Trustee and a member of the Modern Woodman of America.

Surviving are his widow, Rosa; one son, William Scott Jr., of Springfield; two daughters, Mrs. Ann Mae Barrett, of Springfield; Mrs. Ethel Gerhardt, of Atlanta; 16 grandchildren; 31 great grandchildren; one brother, Everett, of Clarksburg; two sisters, Mrs. Lulu Oriahrd, of New Holland; Mrs. Lillie Baird, of Circleville.

Services were held 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, of New Holland with the Rev. Orlo Freshly officiating. Burial was in New Holland Cemetery.

Association of School Administrators, regularly publishes statements of proposed policy regarding education.

The report emphasized that 'children commonly called 'disadvantaged' are in the greatest need for early schooling, for they are most in need of help in developing their ability to live independently and creatively in a modern society.'

At present, it said, schooling for four-year-olds is rarely free of cost and therefore is least available to those children who most desperately need it.

But the report added: "Not only those commonly considered disadvantaged are disadvantaged in their lives at home. The pampered also are disadvantaged; so are those whose parents are obsessed with the need to impress and achieve, those whose parents show them little love, those who have little chance to play with other children, those with physical handicaps."

Nurse Homes Give Nod to State Cases

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Nursing Home Council, a group composed mostly of operators of nursing homes in Franklin and central Ohio counties, urged its member homes today to begin accepting state aid to the aged supported patients.

The action followed announcement last week by the Ohio Department of Public Welfare of an increase in allowances for nursing home care for such patients.

Council homes in Franklin County had started a boycott of welfare supported patients in March because they maintained the state was not paying enough for the care of these elderly patients.

Under the increase, which begins July 1, the monthly allowance for average care will be $165 and $200 for maximum care in all of Ohio's 88 counties. Allowances were as low as $111 for average and $155 for maximum care in 76 counties and $155 and $180 in Franklin and 11 other counties.

Massillon Boy, 13, Is Killed by Rifle

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—Stark County Coroner G. S. Shahan Monday ruled accidental death in the fatal shooting of Kenneth Baum, 13, who was killed Sunday near his home by a .22 caliber rifle.

Sheriff's deputies are continuing the investigation, and have questioned two teenagers who had been target shooting nearby by the Baum home.

Dominicans Are Braced For Strange National Poll

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Dominican Republic reaches another decisive moment Wednesday in its long, frustrating search for some sort of democratic system, and a strange, indefinable mood seems to have settled over this tortured little island nation.

There is suppressed excitement on the eve of national elections which conceivably could bring new, bloody chaos. There seems to be little real optimism about the future, but there seems to be little real pessimism either.

Until the elections are behind them, Dominicans cannot be sure that elections are going to be held successfully at all. But that is only the first hurdle.

The chances are that hurdle will be taken. The next will be acceptance of the result. If the vote Wednesday is close — and that seems likely — there is a good chance for trouble from supporters of the man who is declared the loser.

If that hurdle is taken, there are still others. Any president declared elected must be successfully inaugurated. Then he must remain in office. In a country like the Dominican Republic it will not be easy.

The two major candidates, Juan Bosch of the Dominican Revolutionary party — PRD — and Joaquin Balaguer of the Reform party — PR — each bears a burden of political liability.

Bosch, overthrown in September 1963 after seven months as the nation's first democratically elected president, was accused then of being soft on communism. The charge remains to haunt him.

Balaguer became president in 1961 after the assassination of the dictator, Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, under whom he had served as vice president. The charge of Trujilloism remains to haunt him.

Should Balaguer win by a tight margin, there could be an explosion in the streets sparked by leftists. Should Bosch win by a close margin, the reaction might be more slow, but he could be in danger from right-wing elements in the armed forces.

There was still a chance that a shift in the center of gravity might cause the craft to tumble and crash when the descending rockets are ignited on the final approach to the moon.

If all goes well, however, Surveyor will radio across 290,000 miles of space pictures almost as sharp as those seen on home television screens, showing terrain detail as small as a pencil lead.

These pictures should give scientists a better idea of whether the lunar surface is strong enough to support the weight of large manned landing craft.

Man Hailed As Hero Is Held as Thief

NEW YORK (AP) — Less than a day after he was hailed as a hero for rescuing a boy burned by a high-voltage power line, John Dennis, 28, stood in Criminal Court on a burglary charge.

Judge Herbert I. Sorin asked Monday: "Are you the man who rescued the little boy?"

Dennis said he was, and the judge said: "I was very proud of you, but now I'm disillusioned. First you acted like a real citizen and then you do something like this. What got into you?"

"We're going to try to help you. The court is going to be lenient. I'm going to parole you for a hearing. Now you can go home. I hope you appreciate what the court did for you."

Dennis, who on Sunday rescued Ronnie Perez, 11, after the boy caught fire following a brush with a railroad power line, was charged with burglarizing a Brooklyn service station.

The boy, who toppled off a fence and plunged 30 feet to the freight tracks of the long island rail road, was reported in critical condition.

Interest Hike On Aid Is Hit

Agency Predicts Harm to Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agency for International Development says higher interest rates on U.S. loans to developing countries will cripple American assistance in promoting economic progress overseas.

AID said in a statement Monday the development of backward countries already is threatened by climbing debt costs. An interest hike, it said, would cost the equivalent of $400 million a year worth of U.S. aid appropriations.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has voted to raise the interest rate on development loans from 2.5 per cent to the rate currently charged by the U.S. Treasury for long-term borrowing. The Treasury rate now is 4.5 per cent.

AID also objected to the committee's rejection of President Johnson's plea to put the overseas assistance program on a five-year basis. The committee voted to keep the program on a one-year plan.

The committee's action last week occurred as it worked on the $3.4-billion AID authorization bill for the year starting July 1.

AID noted that external debts of developing countries rose from $10 billion in 1955 to $30 billion in 1964. Interest payments, it said, increased from $800 million to more than $4 billion in the period.

"AID minimum loan terms are already hard enough — if they are not too hard," the agency said. An increase, in U.S. rates, it added, would impair U.S. efforts to get other advanced nations to soften their foreign aid loan terms.

Grange Youth Slates Meet

Summer activities for Pickaway Youth Grange will be discussed at a meeting scheduled 7:30 p.m. Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dowler.

In addition, the fall drill team will be discussed.

Dad of 22 Say Kids Assure Youth

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — "Children keep you young," said John McNaught, 50, whose 22nd was born four days ago.

"It's amazing that we are such a happy family because we really live in appalling conditions," said McNaught. "For one thing, we don't even have a bathroom. The children have to be washed in the kitchen sink."

McNaught and his wife Margaret, 45, were married 30 years ago. Their 20 surviving children include 9 girls and 11 boys and range from Mary, 28, to David, 4 days.

The four eldest daughters are married.

McNaught, who makes $50 a week as a welder, said working children contribute $33 a week and his wife collects $12.32 from the government in family allowances.

Mrs. McNaught said: "I feel as young as ever, but let me say this, I'm not out to create records."

According to the British Medical Journal, Britain's record family totaled 39, in the last century.

Boys Questioned In Priest Slaying

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Police arrested two teen-agers and questioned three others today in the robbery slayings of a priest and a warehouseman.

Chief of Detectives Bart Collins said Tony Esposito, 17, and Jack Brito Jr., 16, had admitted the bludgeoning killing of Eugene Silva, 40, a warehouseman from nearby Santa Clara.

Brito, the detective said, also had admitted taking part in the fatal beating of the Rev. John D. Cox, 31, a Roman Catholic priest from the San Francisco suburb of Millbrae.

Both Esposito and Brito were booked for homicide investigation.

When SHAPE Moves, 9000 Jobs Effectuated

PARIS (AP) — When Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers, Europe — SHAPE — leaves French soil some time before next April it will mean an exodus of 9,000 persons.

SHAPE, first headed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower after the North Atlantic treaty was signed in 1949, is located just west of Paris in a temporary, rambling building.

Working there are 600 officers and 2,500 enlisted men from 14 countries — the United States, France, Britain, West Germany, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, Portugal, Luxembourg, Turkey, Canada, Greece and Italy.

The 15th member, Iceland, has no military forces and is not represented.

There also are 430 civilians, about 80 per cent French. Many are involved with support operations, such as secretarial work, bus driving and maintenance jobs.

Dependents of the non-French military staff total about 6,000 and some live in SHAPE Village, which has 400 apartments. SHAPE Village also has a school for 1,800 pupils, run by the French Education Ministry.

President Charles de Gaulle has said he will withdraw the 60 remaining French officers from SHAPE by July 1. But French sources have said that the bulk of other French military and civilian personnel will be permitted to remain to help keep SHAPE operating and assist in moving when the time comes.

A timetable for the move may be blocked out for review by the ministerial meeting in Brussels, Belgium, June 7-8. A decision may be reached then on where SHAPE will go. Most speculation centers on Brussels.

Besides SHAPE headquarters located near Paris, there is a secret underground command post designed to withstand atomic attack and continue to function in time of war. SHAPE officials will not discuss details.

Also given moving orders by De Gaulle is Allied Forces Central Europe Headquarters at Fontainebleau. It has 2,250 military and civilian personnel.

Dog Adopts Fire Brigade

LISBON (AP) — Most fire brigades have a mascot, but the Lisbon Voluntary Fire Brigade had been out of mascots for some time.

This situation was not to continue. A white and brown pointer arrived at the station and gave every indication of wishing to adopt it as his home. There was no name on his collar, but he appeared to be well trained and intelligent.

When the brigade was called out to a fire, the pointer jumped onto the fire engine as to the manner born, and went off with his hosts.

They put him through various training tests, and he passed them all. After the successful trial period the stray dog became the official mascot.

Role of U.S. Negro In History Stressed

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A. Philip Randolph, president of the Negro American Labor Council, has urged the council and the rest of organized labor to write a history text which would contain the "proper picture of the heroic Negro leaders."

"Most of the histories in our schools carry no sound or reliable picture of the role of the Negro in the United States culture," Randolph said.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, May 31, the 151st day of 1966. There are 214 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1889, one of the nation's worst flood disasters occurred — the Johnstown, Pa., flood. Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons died when heavy rains caused a dam to burst at South Fork, 12 miles above the city.

On this date In 1916, during World War I, the naval battle of Jutland began.

In 1926, the Sesquicentennial exposition opened in Philadelphia.

In 1941, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes was appointed petroleum coordinator for national defense.

In 1942, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill said Germany would be pounded city by city.

In 1945, the Japanese on Okinawa lost the strong defense point of Shuri in the center of the enemy line.

Ten years ago — Biblical scholars announced they had deciphered two more of the Dead Sea scrolls discovered in Jordan in 1952. The two scrolls told of a fabulous treasure of gold and silver hidden in a secret place that probably was referred to in a third scroll that was still undiscovered.

Five years ago — In secret French-Algerian peace talks in France, the delegation from Paris and the rebel representatives from Algeria disagreed over the status of the oil-rich Sahara Desert.

Sheep outnumber people 300 to 1 on the Falkland Islands, Britain's bleak colony in the South Atlantic.

Sway-Backed Bill Is 43 Years Old

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Old Bill, sway-backed, aging and arthritic, has just survived another winter and seems to be feeling his oats.

One would never know to look at him — or would one — that only his doctor's shots and plenty of affection kept Bill going through the cold months.

There were times when it appeared that Bill wouldn't make it. A few months ago when he covrate it took three large bottles of castor oil and other medication to pull him through.

Bill is a horse — a large, black draft horse with a blaze of white running down his nose.

But Bill isn't just any horse — he's a 43-year-old horse, according to his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Booten.

That would make him one of the oldest horses alive.

Dr. Harold Adams, Bill's personal veterinarian, said it's scientifically difficult to pinpoint the exact age of a horse older than 25.

Textile Firm Chief Is Found Dead in Car

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Laboratory tests will be made to determine if an autopsy is needed in the death of Richard M. Sawyer, president of Firestone Textiles Co., who was found dead in his auto Monday.

Sawyer's wife found him in the car, which was parked in the family garage detectives said. The textile firm is a division of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

"But Old Bill is the oldest horse I've ever seen — or heard of," he said.

The Booten family has owned Bill for 18 years. For the last 10, he has been enjoying his twilight years keeping the grass short in a pasture behind a nursery operated by the Bootens.

Bill originally was broken to the plow, but now he's only a pet.

"The family that broke him to a plow when he was young has kept track of him," Mrs. Booten said. "That's how we figured his age."

Another Battle

The zip code may turn out to be the greatest thing since the invention of the wheel, but so far as right now is concerned, there seem to be a few bugs in the system.

A story is being widely circulated that a letter dated Sept. 30, 1965, was mailed from Santa Ana, Calif. It arrived at its destination in Delphi, Ind., on April 2, 1966. It had its air mail stamp, its Santa Ana cancellation, and the proper zip number for Delphi. And where had it been all that time?

Cancellations showed it had been to New Delhi and Bombay, India, as well as a number of other places with indecipherable cancellations.

It was a tough battle, getting people to use zip codes. The next campaign may be to get the post office people to read them.

Job Changes Average 6 a Lifetime

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you are under 25, chances are that you'll change jobs six times during your lifetime. Even men between 35 and 44 average two more changes before retirement.

Accidents are by far the biggest killers of children. Each year they take the lives of more children between 1 and 14 than the five leading diseases combined. Up to age, 6 one of every four children is hurt in a household accident.

Want a placid life? You might start by painting your living room orange. Tests show that this color appears to have the least effect in stirring people's emotions.

Don't forget to bring your own salt if Jean Paul Getty, the billionaire, invites you to dinner. He doesn't keep any on his table — just superstitious.

Quotable notables: "The greatest problem of Western civilization is that it is breeding from the bottom and dying from the top" — Will Durant.

No one who has ever visited the West Coast film colony will be surprised at this: Beverly Hills tops all other communities in phones — it has 130 for every 100 residents.

At last there's a legal $3 bill. It is being issued this week by the Bahamas, which is switching from Britain's traditional pounds, shillings and pence to decimal-based currency. Bahamians also will make change with a new 15-cent square coin and a $5 silver salt if Jean Paul Getty, the billionaire, invites you to dinner. He doesn't keep any on his table — just superstitious.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Fair and mild is the forecast for the business summer — if Viet Nam doesn't kick up a fiscal typhoon.

Summer may be three weeks away according to the calendar, but business planners chart it from Memorial Day to Labor Day. They are looking for generally fairer than usual skies but not as hot an economic climate as last summer cooked up.

They are basing their predictions on what seems to be in consumers' minds, as indicated by the spring trends of buying and saving. Business also has to guess what may be in administration and congressional minds about taxes, government spending, and dealing with the world's trouble spots.

These potential weather breeders are the Viet Nam war on one side of the globe and NATO problems on the other.

But as summer approaches, business thinking seems to have shifted slightly away from super-optimism to an expectation of only a slight slowdown as benefits hot weather and vacation time, but with caution playing a bigger role than exuberance.

Steel prospects are a case in point. Orders are beginning to taper off with the production cutbacks in the auto industry. But orders from other steel users are still so large that most mills are now looking for a busier than usual summer — once the steel industry's own vacations are taken care of.

Auto plants may be a bit quieter this summer than last year. With large holdovers of unsold cars, the production lines are due to be closed down earlier this year than last for model changeovers. But late summer schedules of new model output are likely to be sizable.

Americans are still buying a lot of new cars — even if the purchases are below pace of a few months back. And their spending for other consumer durables is still hefty.

Also they are spending more for services all the time. This has resulted in a larger than normal percentage of their disposable income being spent this year — and a smaller than usual percentage being put into savings or investments. A change might come this summer, but business suspects it's more likely to show up only later in the year.

For one thing, all those catering to travelers and vacationists are confident of a big summer. They expect more people to spend more money on longer vacations — and in farther off places.

The construction and equipment making industries also are counting on business expansion to continue at a brisk clip the rest of the year. Some plans are being trimmed, but most are already too far along for any changes to show up this year.

But with all these portents of fair skies for business, the latest view is that the temperature will be milder than once expected. That is, there will be more spending — but not wild spending; continued growth — but not speculative excesses.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

I am impressed by the number of letters that are written to me asking about the symptoms of Meniere's disease. I am impressed, too, by the fears that are expressed about this condition by many people who refer to their dizziness as Meniere's disease.

Dizziness and Meniere's disease are not the same. A particular form of dizziness accompanies Meniere's disease. Meniere described this disorder almost one hundred years ago and his name has since been identified with it. True Meniere's is comparatively rare. Three symptoms suggest Meniere's disease and even with these symptoms the diagnosis must not be self-made.

Sudden, severe, incapacitating dizzy spells, associated with noises in the ear (tinnitus) and progressive loss of hearing suggest the possibility of Meniere's disease.

Dizziness is technically known as vertigo. The patient may have the feeling that he is standing still and objects are turning around him. Sometimes, he may have the feeling that objects are standing still and that he is turning or falling without control. With this comes a feeling of unsteadiness, nausea loss of balance and often severe emotional upset.

Dizziness must not be confused with headache, faintness, light-headedness or blurring of the eyes.

The center of balance, or equilibrium, lies deep within the inner ear. Three tiny semi-circular canals contain fluid which constantly adjusts to every change of position of the head.

The sensitive balance mechanism can be disturbed by many normal and abnormal conditions that effect it.

1. High and low blood pressure.
2. Side-effects of drugs.
3. Allergies.
4. Motion sickness.
5. Excessive intake of fluid and salt.
6. Ear infections.
7. Eye disorders.
8. Neurological diseases.
9. Arteriosclerosis.
10. Sudden rapid changes of position.
11. Toxic effects of caffeine, alcohol and tobacco.

This is only a partial list of the causes of dizziness.

An attack of dizziness calls forth a tremendous sense of anxiety. This is readily understandable.

Victims of sudden attacks of vertigo not only must cope with the unpleasantness of the attack but they often live in fear that another one will occur when they are least able to handle it. Rightfully, they fear that an incapacitating attack will occur when they are alone, crossing streets or driving a car.

There are now many simple and complex studies that can pinpoint the exact cause of dizziness. X-rays of the skull, neurological examination, hearing tests, balance or caloric tests and eye examinations can all contribute to the diagnosis and suggest the proper course of treatment.

Dizziness is a symptom not a disease. When the cause is found this unpleasant sensation can usually be controlled.

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS when trolley cars clanged their way through street after street of the Borough of Brooklyn, relates John Straley, an inspector climbed aboard one open car to check on the integrity and competence of brand new Conductor Dinty O'Toole.

First he counted the passengers, then he noted the number of fares O'Toole had rung up. "Ah ha, lad," he roared. "Caught you in the act. There are two more passengers on board this car right now than the fares you've registered." Dinty carefully made a count himself, then addressed the passengers: "Bejabbers, the inspector is right! Two of yez will have to get off!"

Growing old gracefully is an art that few have mastered. Winston Churchill and Dr. Schweitzer were two conspicuous examples. Bernard Baruch was another. Just a few months before his death, Baruch made his priceless comment: "A man's life can be divided into three stages: 1. Youth; 2. Middle age; and 3. 'My, sir, you're looking well!'" George Bernard Shaw, another irrepressible octogenarian, put his rueful reflection on the process of ageing into the mouth of his play character Julius Caesar: "I grow older, whilst the crowd on the Appian Way is always the same age."

Paul Porter complimented a Texas tycoon on his plush new offices. "Don't compliment ME," the tycoon told him. "I just gave the decorator an unlimited budget—and, by gosh, he exceeded it!"

Nation in Arms?

By John Chamberlain

The idea that all young men (and women?) should be drafted to give two or three years service to their nation may seem superficially to be a good one. It is certainly "democratic" in the modern levelling sense of the term. But if it is ever accepted by Congress the ghosts of thousands of immigrants who quit continental Europe in the nineteenth century to come to our shores will surely murmur their disbelief. To them, it would betoken the ultimate Europeanization of the "land of the free." It would be the surrender of their fondest hopes for their children and their children's children, that somewhere in the world there must continue to exist a nation which will not rely on compelled servitude to maintain itself in the international balance of power.

The idea of the "nation in arms" was Napoleon's, and it was a totalitarian idea. Britain held out against it until 1914. But the continent of Europe, which in the nineteenth century remained closer to the theory of feudalism than free Britain, adopted the Napoleonic theory. It had its most monstrous growth in the Prussianized regions of Germany. After the failure of the revolution of 1848 in middle and eastern Europe, thousands of Germans, Poles, Russians, Hungarians and Bohemians came to the United States to escape compulsory military service. They revelled in the traditionally liberal American and British theory that the State was an agent of the people, not vice versa. Their bodies, so they felt, were at last their own.

The older American theory was that a young man should be willing to volunteer his services if his country happened to be menaced. True enough, we departed quite early from the ideal. There was a draft in the Civil War. And before we had finally plunged into World War I, General Hugh ("Iron Pants") Johnson and a small coterie of thinkers around him were ready with an outline for "selective service." A selective draft was used once again in World War II.

But always, the prevailing theory was that the draft was something for emergency use. When the crisis had passed, we would return to our original theory of government, that the citizen owned his own body and that the State was the hired agent of the sum total of free bodies who had arrived at a responsible voting age.

Because I feel that the draft is abnormal, a departure from the constitutive theory of the American Republic, I have a great deal of sympathy for the young college rebels who object to its "inequities." But my sympathy here is at odds with my feeling that any war that seeks to throw a roadblock in the way of the advance of Communism is a "just" war. A triumphant Communism, after all, would spread the totalitarian idea of the "nation in arms" all over the world. For the Prussian theory that people are the agents of the State, and not vice versa, has passed to Moscow and Peking, and they are bent on making it prevail universally. Young people who object to the "inequities" of the draft should bear this in mind, and perhaps be willing to put up temporarily with our own national compromises in this matter of raising a military force to fight Communism.

To substitute the McNamara idea of universal youth service for the present draft would be jumping from a hot frying pan to an even hotter fire. The use of "selective service" to fuel the Vietnam war is, of course, a fine piece of hypocrisy. But we

The zip code may turn out to be the greatest thing since the invention of the wheel, but so far as right now is concerned, there seem to be a few bugs in the system.

A story is being widely circulated that a letter dated Sept. 30, 1965, was mailed from Santa Ana, Calif. It arrived at its destination in Delphi, Ind., on April 2, 1966. It had its air mail stamp, its Santa Ana cancellation, and the proper zip number for Delphi. And where had it been all that time?

Cancellations showed it had been to New Delhi and Bombay, India, as well as a number of other places with indecipherable cancellations.

It was a tough battle, getting people to use zip codes. The next campaign may be to get the post office people to read them.

got started in this war on the wrong foot, relying on the draft instead of on a volunteer professional army. It is probably too late to change things in the present climate, which seems to be one of universal befuddlement. Socialist-minded students who are demonstrating against the draft are not really against the principle of State compulsion; they are just trying to stop a particular war. They, in their own way, are hypocrites, too.

The attempt to escape from the current befuddlement by saddling the nation with a permanent Prussian system of compulsory universal service to the State should be vigorously scrutinized. And, before acting, our Congressmen should go back and read some of the biographies of the "Eighteen Forty-Eighters" who quit Europe to get away from the very thing that is now being proposed as "democratic."

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Fair and mild is the forecast for the business summer — if Viet Nam doesn't kick up a fiscal typhoon.

Summer may be three weeks away according to the calendar, but business planners chart it from Memorial Day to Labor Day. They are looking for generally fairer than usual skies but not as hot an economic climate as last summer cooked up.

They are basing their predictions on what seems to be in consumers' minds, as indicated by the spring trends of buying and saving. Business also has to guess what may be in administration and congressional minds about taxes, government spending, and dealing with the world's trouble spots.

These potential weather breeders are the Viet Nam war on one side of the globe and NATO problems on the other.

But as summer approaches, business thinking seems to have shifted slightly away from super-optimism to an expectation of only a slight slowdown as benefits hot weather and vacation time, but with caution playing a bigger role than exuberance.

Steel prospects are a case in point. Orders are beginning to taper off with the production cutbacks in the auto industry. But orders from other steel users are still so large that most

mills are now looking for a busier than usual summer — once the steel industry's own vacations are taken care of.

Auto plants may be a bit quieter this summer than last year. With large holdovers of unsold cars, the production lines are due to be closed down earlier this year than last for model changeovers. But late summer schedules of new model output are likely to be sizable.

Americans are still buying a lot of new cars — even if the purchases are below pace of a few months back. And their spending for other consumer durables is still hefty.

Also they are spending more for services all the time. This has resulted in a larger than normal percentage of their disposable income being spent this year — and a smaller than usual percentage being put into savings or investments. A change might come this summer, but business suspects it's more likely to show up only later in the year.

For one thing, all those catering to travelers and vacationists are confident of a big summer. They expect more people to spend more money on longer vacations — and in farther off places.

The construction and equipment making industries also are counting on business expansion to continue at a brisk clip the rest of the year. Some plans are being trimmed, but most are already too far along for any changes to show up this year.

But with all these portents of fair skies for business, the latest view is that the temperature will be milder than once expected. That is, there will be more spending — but not wild spending; continued growth — but not speculative excesses.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I am impressed by the number of letters that are written to me asking about the symptoms of Meniere's disease. I am impressed, too, by the fears that are expressed about this condition by many people who refer to their dizziness as Meniere's disease.

Dizziness and Meniere's disease are not the same. A particular form of dizziness accompanies Meniere's disease. Meniere described this disorder almost one hundred years ago and his name has since been identified with it. True Meniere's is comparatively rare. Three symptoms suggest Meniere's disease and even with these symptoms the diagnosis must not be self-made.

Sudden, severe, incapacitating dizzy spells, associated with noises in the ear (tinnitus) and progressive loss of hearing suggest the possibility of Meniere's disease.

Dizziness is technically known as vertigo. The patient may have the feeling that he is standing still and objects are turning around him. Sometimes, he may have the feeling that objects are standing still and that he is turning or falling without control. With this comes a feeling of unsteadiness, nausea loss of balance and often severe emotional upset.

Dizziness must not be confused with headache, faintness, light-headedness or blurring of the eyes.

The center of balance, or equilibrium, lies deep within the inner ear. Three tiny semi-circular canals contain fluid which constantly adjusts to every change of position of the head.

The sensitive balance mechanism can be disturbed by many normal and abnormal conditions that affect it.

1. High and low blood pressure.
2. Side-effects of drugs.
3. Allergies.
4. Motion sickness.
5. Excessive intake of fluid and salt.
6. Ear infections.
7. Eye disorders.
8. Neurological diseases.
9. Arteriosclerosis.
10. Sudden rapid changes of position.
11. Toxic effects of caffeine, alcohol and tobacco.

This is only a partial list of the causes of dizziness. An attack of dizziness calls forth a tremendous sense of anxiety. This is readily understandable.

Victims of sudden attacks of vertigo not only must cope with the unpleasantness of the attack but they often live in fear that another one will occur when they are least able to handle it. Rightfully, they fear that an incapacitating attack will occur when they are alone, crossing streets or driving a car.

There are now many simple and complex studies that can pinpoint the exact cause of dizziness. X-rays of the skull, neurological examination, hearing tests, balance or caloric tests and eye examinations can all contribute to the diagnosis and suggest the proper course of treatment.

Dizziness is a symptom not a disease. When the cause is found this unpleasant sensation can usually be controlled.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The extremist Buddhist leaders in Viet Nam stay away from the gasoline can themselves. It's the minor, unheard-of Buddhists who are committing suicide by setting themselves afire.

There can be no doubt that the reported suicides in the past few days were committed with the approval of the leadership.

Unknown is this part of what happened: did these people volunteer to kill themselves or were they asked to?

These deaths, intended to force the overthrow of the military government led by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, are aimed at world opinion but particularly at American opinion. The United States has supported Ky's regime.

But such self-immolation by the Buddhists is based on a plea for pity — to see things the Buddhists' way and give them what they want — and not on an appeal to reason or what is right.

The hope is that the suicides will so horrify President Johnson and the American government — or so shame them before the world — that the United States will abandon Ky.

But it's a plea for pity mixed with blackmail — aggressive masochism — for Tam Chau, chairman of the Buddhist Institute, warned of more suicides unless Ky steps down and lets a civilian government take over. Chau said "we will continue this struggle in the spirit of non-violence of Buddhism." Asked if he considered suicide nonviolence, he said: "I see no contradiction, no contradiction whatsoever."

Then he committed a perfect contradiction.

This struggle between the Buddhists and Ky's government is political and not at all religious for Ky, a Buddhist himself, is not repressing or persecuting any religious group for religious reasons.

But Chau said, "We Buddhists are not involved in a political struggle. We are defending our religion."

And Tri Quang, perhaps the most militant Buddhist leader, said there might be more suicides unless Johnson dropped his support of Ky. He talked after one of the burnings and, the New York Times reported, was "smiling impishly." He had written to Johnson for assistance.

But the administration brushed him off — this was two weeks ago — with a statement by Secretary of State Rusk who said this government wanted all factions to lay aside their differences and pull together nationally.

After two suicides Saturday, a monk warned there would be more on Sunday and still more today.

In view of all this there can be no doubt that these suicides are not spontaneous acts by emotional individuals but are prearranged, with the blessing of the leaders who let the minor people die to further their cause.

This is one of the most cruel, cold-blooded performances in history. It is extremism at its worst. Yet these same Buddhist leaders want a hand in running the government.

Reports from Viet Nam say these leaders do not represent the vast majority of Buddhists, who make up 80 per cent of the population, but only one faction

Kidde, who still gets around on his own power, was born in Mobile, Ala., Aug. 31, 1851.

Although he never worked under Social Security, he qualifies for Medicare because he is over 65. He lives with his Kidde was born in slavery, the youngest of 16 children. He had five wives and 16 children and worked as a coal miner and farm hand.

Views on TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Network television loves a sit-by-the-fire kind of holiday. But the long Memorial Day weekend is a hit-the-road, outdoor barbecue type, and except for a lot of baseball and some golf shows, there was not much on the tube to counteract the lure of the maple tree's shade.

Most interesting hour of the long weekend had to be the first part of NBC's two-part "White Paper" Sunday night called "The Age of Kennedy." It was broadcast on the 49th anniversary of the late president's birth, and one wishes it had been a more incisive and illuminating study of those years when John Fitzgerald Kennedy was progressing from a Harvard University graduate to the White House.

Next Sunday the program will deal with Kennedy's years in the White House, and perhaps some of the loose strings will be tied up then.

Obviously the producer and writer of the program, Al Wasserman, took on an enormous job in attempting to explain the motivations behind John F. Kennedy. What showed mostly, alas, was the results of his big hunt for new television film and little-known photographs of the earnest young millionaire who at 23 wrote a best-selling non-fiction book, "Why England Slept," and who by sheer determination overcame a physical handicap in order to enlist in the Navy during World War II.

Some of those early photographs and home movie clips showed an almost painfully thin, eager and shy young man going about the business of making political friends and playing with his friends and family.

They were spliced with routine newsreel clips — of Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain, Churchill, FDR and Harry S. Truman — designed to tie Kennedy's career to great world events. The program, however, never hinted at the motivations that carried the young Kennedy to the point when, in 1960, he was nominated for the presidency.

Henry Fonda read bits and pieces from assorted Kennedy writings and speeches. But somehow the fragments — including excerpts from an embarrassingly sugary interview with the young senator and his wife, never seemed to fall into any kind of a meaningful whole.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The extremist Buddhist leaders in Viet Nam stay away from the gasoline can themselves. It's the minor, unheard-of Buddhists who are committing suicide by setting themselves afire.

There can be no doubt that the reported suicides in the past few days were committed with the approval of the leadership.

Unknown is this part of what happened: did these people volunteer to kill themselves or were they asked to?

These deaths, intended to force the overthrow of the military government led by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, are aimed at world opinion but particularly at American opinion. The United States has supported Ky's regime.

But such self-immolation by the Buddhists is based on a plea for pity — to see things the Buddhists' way and give them what they want — and not on an appeal to reason or what is right.

Views on TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Network television loves a sit-by-the-fire kind of holiday. But the long Memorial Day weekend is a hit-the-road, outdoor barbecue type, and except for a lot of baseball and some golf shows, there was not much on the tube to counteract the lure of the maple tree's shade.

Most interesting hour of the long weekend had to be the first part of NBC's two-part "White Paper" Sunday night called "The Age of Kennedy." It was broadcast on the 49th anniversary of the late president's birth, and one wishes it had been a more incisive and illuminating study of those years when John Fitzgerald Kennedy was progressing from a Harvard University graduate to the White House.

Next Sunday the program will deal with Kennedy's years in the White House, and perhaps some of the loose strings will be tied up then.

Obviously the producer and writer of the program, Al Wasserman, took on an enormous job in attempting to explain the motivations behind John F. Kennedy. What showed mostly, alas, was the results of his big hunt for new television film and little-known photographs of the earnest young millionaire who at 23 wrote a best-selling non-fiction book, "Why England Slept," and who by sheer determination overcame a physical handicap in order to enlist in the Navy during World War II.

Some of those early photographs and home movie clips showed an almost painfully thin, eager and shy young man going about the business of making political friends and playing with his friends and family.

They were spiced with routine newsreel clips — of Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain, Churchill, FDR and Harry S. Truman — designed to tie the Kennedy's career to great world events. The program, however, never hinted at the motivations that carried the young Kennedy to the point when, in 1960, he was nominated for the presidency.

Henry Fonda read bits and pieces from assorted Kennedy writings and speeches. But somehow the fragments — including excerpts from an embarrassingly sugary interview with the young senator and his wife, never seemed to fall into any kind of a meaningful whole.

The hope is that the suicides will so horrify President Johnson and the American government — or so shame them before the world — that the United States will abandon Ky.

But it's a plea for pity mixed with blackmail — aggressive masochism — for Tam Chau, chairman of the Buddhist Institute, warned of more suicides unless Ky steps down and lets a civilian government take over. Chau said "we will continue this struggle in the spirit of non-violence of Buddhism." Asked if he considered suicide non-violence, he said: "I see no contradiction, no contradiction whatsoever."

Then he committed a perfect contradiction. This struggle between the Buddhists and Ky's government is political and not at all religious for Ky, a Buddhist himself, is not repressing or persecuting any religious group for religious reasons.

But Chau said, "We Buddhists are not involved in a political struggle. We are defending our religion."

And Tri Quang, perhaps the most militant Buddhist leader, said there might be more suicides unless Johnson dropped his support of Ky. He talked after one of the burnings and, the New York Times reported, was "smiling impishly." He had written to Johnson for assistance.

But the administration brushed him off — this was two weeks ago — with a statement by Secretary of State Rusk who said this government wanted all factions to lay aside their differences and pull together nationally.

After two suicides Saturday, a monk warned there would be more on Sunday and still more today.

In view of all this there can be no doubt that these suicides are not spontaneous acts by emotional individuals but are prearranged, with the blessing of the leaders who let the minor people die to further their cause.

This is one of the most cruel, cold-blooded performances in history. It is extremism at its worst. Yet these same Buddhist leaders want a hand in running the government.

Reports from Viet Nam say these leaders do not represent the vast majority of Buddhists, who make up 80 per cent of the population, but only one faction

Medicare Signee 114-Years-Old

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Peoria's oldest medicare signee is Thomas Kidde, 114 years old.

Kidde, who still gets around on his own power, was born in Mobile, Ala., Aug. 31, 1851.

Although he never worked under Social Security, he qualifies for Medicare because he is over 65. He lives with his daughter, Mrs. Carrie Smith, who also qualifies for hospital insurance because she receives monthly Social Security payments.

Kidde was born in slavery, the youngest of 16 children. He had five wives and 16 children and worked as a coal miner and farm hand.

Procedures For Easy Stain Removal

By ELEANOR ROSS

The sweeter things in life—such as chocolate-covered cherries, creamy bon-bons, and lollipops—may end up on car upholstery, clothes, or sofa cushions as well as in a child's mouth.

However, these familiar candy stains can usually be safely removed with soap or detergent suds.

Go to work on the sticky fingermarks and chocolate smears as soon as possible, so they won't be transferred to other surfaces and so that all vestiges of discoloration can be washed away easily.

Scrape off any clinging remains of candy with a dull knife or rubber scraper. Apply a thickly-lathered sponge to the stained area with circular motions, overlapping strokes and extending them beyond the spot being treated.

If the surface is textured—such as a car or furniture upholstery, floor mats, and a webbing safety belts—use a soft brush dipped into suds for efficiency in coaxing residues from the crevices. Wipe away dirty suds before rinsing the area with a sponge squeezed out of clean water.

Washable apparel and household fabrics should go into the washer or washtub as soon as possible after stains have been pre-treated.

Smear on woodwork, furniture, or wallpaper should be sponged off with thick suds and a minimum of moisture.

If the paper's washability is in doubt, test a small area in an inconspicuous place. If the color does not blur, it is safe to proceed. Otherwise, a paste of fuller's earth or French chalk and carbon tetrachloride may be used.

To treat chocolate stains, wash with hot suds. Treat any stain remaining with a weak solution of household bleach or hydrogen peroxide, if the fabric or surface permits. Then launder fabric or re-wash area with warm-to-hot suds.

For hard candy or lollipop stains, sponge or soak fabrics with cool water, then wash or launder with hot suds. Sponge sticky smudges from woodwork, mirrors and other hard surfaces with warm suds, followed by rinse-wiping with a clean damp sponge or cloth.

Stains consisting mainly of sugar, milk, or cream should be sponged with cool water to remove sugar and protein content. Then wash with warm water to remove grease. If any stain remains, treat it with a weak solution of bleach or peroxide, if suitable for the fabric or surface. Wash again with hot suds.

To get rid of fruit-filled candy stains, sponge with cool water and rub lightly with glycerine. After a few hours, apply a few drops of vinegar to the fabric, then rinse this way after a minute or two, then launder the piece with warm suds.

For other fruit stains, stretch the stained portion of fabric taut over a bowl or strainer and fasten with an elastic band

Dear Abby:

Watch Those Phone Manners!

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would say something in your column about young people who telephone and ask, "Is Mary there?" And when they are asked, "Who is calling," they either hang up or say, "Never mind, I'll call later."

We have a 16-year-old daughter, and this happens at our home at the time, which is very annoying. Should we comment to all Mary's nameless callers? Or should we ask Mary to educate her friends?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Not only "young people" but many who are old enough to know better are guilty of this rudeness. For those who need a lesson in the proper procedure to follow: Say, "Hello. This is Bill Forthright."

May I please speak to Mary?" (One father told me that a boy once called and asked, "IS AGNES THERE?"

The father simply replied, "Yes," and hung up. He later explained to Agnes that the boy had merely asked him a question and he answered it.

DEAR ABBY: Four years

or string. Next, pour boiling water through the stain from a height of 3 to 4 feet. Then launder the piece as usual.

Convenience Found In Mobile Homes

By ELEANOR ROSS

"Amazing" is the word for the growing popularity of the mobile home.

Today, many families are choosing mobile homes as permanent residences, especially folks in retirement who find that a large home or apartment is no longer necessary or feasible. The new mobile homes are equipped with all the comforts and conveniences that people expect.

Room designs range from formal to early American to informal. Many mobiles are just as spacious as apartments; some even have wood-burning fireplaces.

And the modern mobile home is expanding in area; there are some built with up to seven rooms.

Such layouts generally have one or two bathrooms equipped with sliding shower doors, full-size tubs, countertop sinks, linen storage space, mirrored cabinets and cabinets which can be locked.

Kitchens, done in decorative colors, are equipped with special gadgets as well as standard home appliances. Such conveniences as double sinks and ranges with ventilating fans and hoods are available. Some kitchens contain washers and dryers, but many of these homes provide separate utility rooms having built-in laundry facilities.

Manufacturers, well aware that consumers seek minimum upkeep, use construction materials and furnishings that are easy to clean. Built-in furniture—flush to walls, floors, and even to ceilings—can be sponged with soap or detergent suds in minutes. Vinyl tiles in kitchens and bathrooms and the dirt-and-spot-resistant synthetic carpeting are equally easy to wash.

Even aluminum exteriors can be swabbed with hot suds, then hosed off.

Mobile home parks also usually supply the extra features expected in any permanent residential community. In addition to electricity, gas, and sewer hookups; swimming pools and other recreational facilities, they often provide showers, coin laundries, and salon-type hair dryers.

Whether a family prefers to travel or settle down, mobile

New Inventions Are Practical

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

If you sit around daydreaming about the money you'll make when you conjure up some fabulous invention or perfect a superior product, you're on the wrong track.

Doers, not dreamers, are the ones who come up with money-making ideas. This is especially true if they're doing something they truly like and enjoy.

The sewing field, for example, is threaded with success stories involving women whose interest in fashion and in making their own clothes has led them to invent a useful sewing aid.

Necessity was the mother of invention of Mary Lou Rosser of Washington, D. C.

She was making a suit to wear to a special social event but somehow botched its bound buttonholes. She patched up the job by inventing a triangular-shaped bound buttonhole to cover up her blunder.

Mrs. Rosser's triangular buttonhole patterns in various sizes are now available at sewing notions counters everywhere.

Boredom kindled the flame of inventiveness in Mrs. Anthony Mello of Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. Mello liked to smock, but grew restive following a lot of little dots on a pattern.

She crossed out the dots by creating a smock ruler. You lay it flat on fabric and trace around it. The resultant zigzag line is a breeze to follow.

enabled June Taylor of Hartland, Wisconsin, to perfect a very useful product.

Mrs. Taylor makes her own clothes and, as she says: "I don't want anyone to ask me, 'Did you make that dress?' I want to be able to surprise them by telling them I made it when they didn't even suspect this because of its professional finish."

This attitude led Mrs. Taylor to the discovery that if all seams, straight or curved, are pressed perfectly flat on the inside, they will press easily into the necessary shape on the outside.

To achieve such a perfect press job, Mrs. Taylor invented a versatile contour pressing board that can be used in any of five balanced positions. It's a best-seller in stores across the country.

The board has a hinged assembly so that it provides points, curves, straight or flat contours and vari-sized surfaces for countless pressing needs.

A problem—trying to hook and unhook the backs of dresses—and bras—inspired still another woman, Mrs. Sydney Cousins of New York, to invent a new type of closing. It hit the market with such impact that in six months' time she found herself heading up a million-dollar business.

Mrs. Cousins' big invention is a little nylon clasp consisting of two halves which slide together smoothly and lock.

It took her 18 years to perfect the clasp, which she named after her daughter Bonnie.

Available in many sizes, the clasp is being used by manufacturers of men's, women's and children's apparel and by home sewers for closings formerly joined by hooks and eyes, buttons or metal fasteners.

A boat canvas maker is featuring the clasp as a new fastener for boat covers. Industrial uses are being studied and manufacture and distribution of the

Procedures For Easy Stain Removal

By ELEANOR ROSS

The sweeter things in life—such as chocolate-covered cherries, creamy bon-bons, and lollipops—may end up on car upholstery, clothes, or sofa cushions as well as in a child's mouth.

However, these familiar candy stains can usually be safely removed with soap or detergent suds.

Go to work on the sticky fingermarks and chocolate smears as soon as possible, so they won't be transferred to other surfaces and so that all vestiges of discoloration can be washed away easily.

While different types of candy require different "first aid" procedures, these general rules apply to tidying up the car, wardrobes and hazard-prone areas of the house, where suds are normally used in cleaning.

Scrape off any clinging remains of candy with a dull knife or rubber scraper. Apply a thickly-lathered sponge to the stained area with circular motions, overlapping strokes and extending them beyond the spot being treated.

If the surface is textured—such as a car or furniture upholstery, floor mats, and a webbing safety belts—use a soft brush dipped into suds for efficiency in coaxing residues from the crevices. Wipe away dirty suds before rinsing the area with a sponge squeezed out of clean water.

Washable apparel and household fabrics should go into the washer or washtub as soon as possible after stains have been pre-treated.

Smear on woodwork, furniture, or wallpaper should be sponged off with thick suds and a minimum of moisture.

If the paper's washability is in doubt, test a small area in an inconspicuous place. If the color does not blur, it is safe to proceed. Otherwise, a paste of fuller's earth or French chalk and carbon tetrachloride may be used.

To treat chocolate stains, wash with hot suds. Treat any stain remaining with a weak solution of household bleach or hydrogen peroxide, if the fabric or surface permits. Then launder fabric or re-wash area with warm-to-hot suds.

For hard candy or lollipop stains, sponge or soak fabrics with cool water, then wash or launder with hot suds. Sponge sticky smudges from woodwork, mirrors and other hard surfaces with warm suds, followed by rinse-wiping with a clean damp sponge or cloth.

Stains consisting mainly of sugar, milk, or cream should be sponged with cool water to remove sugar and protein content. Then wash with warm water to remove grease. If any stain remains, treat it with a weak solution of bleach or peroxide, if suitable for the fabric or surface. Wash again with hot suds.

To get rid of fruit-filled candy stains, sponge with cool water and rub lightly with glycerine. After a few hours, apply a few drops of vinegar to the fabric, then rinse this way after a minute or two, then launder the piece with warm suds.

For other fruit stains, stretch the stained portion of fabric taut over a bowl or strainer and fasten with an elastic band

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Puren

Watch Those Phone Manners!

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would say something in your column about young people who telephone and ask, "Is Mary there?" And when they are asked, "Who is calling?" they either hang up or say, "Never mind, I'll call later."

We have a 16-year-old daughter, and this happens at our home at the time, which is very annoying. Should we comment to all Mary's nameless callers? Or should we ask Mary to educate her friends?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Not only "young people" but many who are old enough to know better are guilty of this rudeness. For those who need a lesson in the proper procedure to follow: Say, "Hello. This is Bill Forthright."

May I please speak to Mary?" (One father told me that a boy once called and asked, "IS AGNES THERE?"

The father's reply, "Yes," and hung up. He later explained to Agnes that the boy had merely asked him a question and he answered it.

DEAR ABBY: Four years

ago my older sister was engaged to marry a man I'll call Lester, but he broke the engagement to marry another girl. (He did the honorable thing by this girl because her father threatened to kill him.) My sister was heartbroken for over a year, but she got over it and is now married to a very nice fellow. Lester's wife had two more children in the meantime, but their marriage didn't work out so they are being divorced.

I bumped into Lester two weeks ago and he asked me out. I went, but I didn't tell my folks because they hate him. I have seen him several times, but I don't like sneaking around. I am 18 and Lester is 27. Do you see any reason why I can't date him out in the open? How can I make my folks accept Lester? He's really not a bad guy, he's just had some tough breaks.

KID SISTER

DEAR KID: Without judging Lester (circumstances have already done that), may I suggest that you not reopen old wounds and add to your parents' anxieties by becoming involved with what strikes me as a loser.

DEAR ABBY: Your suggestion to barmaids who can't keep the wolves from making passes was great. You advised them to point out the huskiest bartender in the place and say, "There's my husband!"

Well I used a similar gag 22 years ago when I was a green cocktail waitress in Norfolk, Va. A good-looking sailor came into the bar and said, "How about taking you home, baby?" I pointed to the bartender and said, "There's my brother, he's taking me home." The sailor promptly grabbed me and gave me a real big kiss right on the mouth and said, "SIS!"

He was the bartender's kid brother, so help me!

'Second Collision' Research Is Sought

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has called for more research on prevention of injuries caused by the so-called "second collision" in an auto crash.

In an editorial in the current issue of the Journal of the AMA, the "second collision" is defined as what happens when the driver or passengers are thrown against the interior of the car after it collides with another object.

Strange Noises Heard Down Below

LISBON (AP) — Intrigued lodgers of a Lisbon apartment building now have the answer to their questions about that scraping noise on the second floor.

For two years, according to a recently published communique, DIALAP (Portuguese company for diamond cutting) had employed Portuguese apprentices and foreign workers, cutting the gems from Angola in a fashionable building of Avenida dos Estados Unidos.

This year the company moved to its own suburban building, where new workshops holding 650 workers will be the largest of their kind in Europe.

Production of stones last year reached 5,120 carats in the apartment workshops, but the president of the board of directors, Cmdr. Ernesto de Vilhena, says he hopes the output will double this year.

'Second Collision' Research Is Sought

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has called for more research on prevention of injuries caused by the so-called "second collision" in an auto crash.

In an editorial in the current issue of the Journal of the AMA, the "second collision" is defined as what happens when the driver or passengers are thrown against the interior of the car after it collides with another object.

Strange Noises Heard Down Below

LISBON (AP) — Intrigued lodgers of a Lisbon apartment building now have the answer to their questions about that scraping noise on the second floor.

For two years, according to a recently published communique, DIALAP (Portuguese company for diamond cutting) had employed Portuguese apprentices and foreign workers, cutting the gems from Angola in a fashionable building of Avenida dos Estados Unidos.

This year the company moved to its own suburban building, where new workshops holding 650 workers will be the largest of their kind in Europe.

Production of stones last year reached 5,120 carats in the apartment workshops, but the president of the board of directors, Cmdr. Ernesto de Vilhena, says he hopes the output will double this year.

Food Prices Still Climbing

AP housewives spiced their findings with pointed comments about food prices—like “exorbitant” and “skyrocketing.”
Food prices make up only 22.5 per cent of the government’s over-all cost of living index, which during the March-to-March period rose 2.5 per cent. However, it is food prices which the housewife encounters face to face every week and is most aware of.

Both AP and government checkers reported Cleveland to be the cheapest city for the over-all food bill. Government checkers came up with a figure of $19.67 for 39 items, and the AP housewife found the same items for $18.77.

Government checkers found San Francisco to be the costliest city, with an average price of $21.27 for 39 items compared with $19.70 reported by the AP checker. Costliest city in the AP survey was Boston, with a total of $21.06 compared with the government finding of $21.10.

In between the extremes came Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Washington, D.C.

AP’s San Francisco checker called recent price rises in meat “exorbitant.”

The housewife in Washington complained that “some basic items of diet have increased over the past year with no publicity—bread up 4 cents, milk up 4 cents, rice up 4 cents, potatoes up 15 to 25 cents for 10 pounds.”

Said the Chicagoan: “The manager of a store I checked said he had 600 ‘voids’ in the past week. A ‘void’ is where a customer finds he doesn’t have enough money to pay for everything in his basket.”

“All prices have skyrocketed but meat is extremely high,” said the Pittsburgh reporter.

The Baltimore surveyor said “an employee of one of the supermarkets included in my canvass claimed he is spending more time changing the prices of goods than stocking the shelves themselves.”

“The average housewife finds herself buying a lower quality item to keep her budget balanced,” said the Detroitite. “I watch pennies closer than ever before.”

The AP budget brigade turned up a wide spread in prices for individual items from store to store in the same city. But by the time they had priced all the items on the list, the total tended to be about the same.

In Baltimore, for example, one store had an 89-cent special on sirloin steak while a second store charged $1.19. Nevertheless the checker’s total bill was $20.57 in the first store, $20.59 in the other.

Reports by both sets of checkers indicated that pork prices, which had been in orbit for months, were beginning to level out or decline, although still far higher than a year ago.

Government checkers reported an average price of $11.17 for pork chops in Baltimore

compared with $11.77 in February and 93.2 cents in March 1965, $1.09.5 in Boston compared with $1.08.7 and $0.6 cents, $1.13.2 in Cleveland compared with $1.15.7 and 90.8 cents, and $1.07.6 in Detroit compared with $1.12.1 and 85 cents.

AP’s budget brigade found their three-store average price for pork chops to be $11.77 in Baltimore, $11.17 in Boston, $11.13 in Cleveland and 99 cents in Detroit.

The tendency for food prices in general to level out was reflected in April statistics announced by the government a week ago showing that over-all food costs rose only .1 of 1 per cent over the March averages.

The AP budget brigade in general agreed that there are several ways to resist advancing prices. These include buying only the items on a prepared list, placing a limit on the total to be spent, eliminating luxuries and buying less expensive grades.

The AP’s Detroit checker said advances in the processing of foods often beguile the shopper into spending more than she intended.

The Cleveland member of the team remarked that “so complete and elegant an array of prepared food snow is on the market that I begin to suspect the cook may be done away with.”

The budget brigade said shopping in several stores saves money, but may prolong the chore of buying the groceries beyond that which a busy housewife can spare.

The Philadelphia checker said: “I find it necessary to devote considerably more time to shopping all three stores to take advantage of their loss leaders and determine which stores have the better values.”

The brigade’s San Francisco housewife said she was surprised to find that “a market well known for its ‘low prices’ charged more for meat than another market considered high-priced for meat. This latter market was considerably lower in prices and its meat was superior.”

An analysis of the returns from the AP’s surveyors showed that a housewife with unlimited time for shopping could have saved a substantial sum by ferreting out the lowest price for a given item at each of the three stores visited.

Thus the shopper in the Washington area ran up a bill averaging $20 for the 40 items priced. By switching from store to store she could have had them for $18.67.

The shopping list of the AP budget brigade included staple meats, fish and poultry, fruits, vegetables, canned goods, coffee, tea, sugar, eggs, butter, margarine, cheese, cereal and cold cuts.

The total bill by cities (government figure first) follows: Baltimore, $20.30 and $20.83; Boston, $22.10 and $21.06; Chicago, $20.52 and $19.68; Cleveland, $19.67 and $18.77; Detroit, $19.82 and $19.53; Los Angeles, $20.38 and $19.02; New York, $20.68 and $20.10; Philadelphia, $20.42 and $19.89; Pittsburgh, $20.43 and $21.03; St. Louis, $20.43 and $20.43 (same); San Francisco, blond trail blazer by morning, a red-haired riot at noon, and by sundown a raven-haired hommie fatale. And for the same reasons — a change of wigs.

Unlike his wife, he can be bald when he goes to bed.

Yet Mark Traynor, inventor of full-sized wigs, not toupees for men, claims he has as many satisfied customers with a full head of hair as he does mature gentlemen with glamorous craniums.

Not only do blonds have more fun, Traynor says any man does who changes the color of his tresses once in a while, especially if nature is beginning to brush up his real crop with gray.

Furthermore, wigs are a saving. Busy men who match theirs to their own current hair color can go under cover for a while, and thereby postpone trips to the barbershop.

Long-haired musicians — the rock ‘n’ roll kind — are also among Traynor’s faithfuls. For a group of gyrating guitar strummers who consider a mop in motion essential to their image, and yet find curls during the daylight hours strictly for girls, Traynor grew a few wigs to shoulder length that swing with the beat.

Actually, Traynor, a spare young man with a burgeoning supply of blond hair grown on his own, is a make-up artist who did the wigs for men as a gag on Johnny Carson’s television show. The response was so overwhelming from the long-haired, short-haired and no-haired men around the world that he was suddenly in a new business.

Columbia, a community to be built in Maryland between Baltimore and Washington, will have a lakefront amusement area modeled on Copenhagen’s Tivoli.

Firms Seek Litter Curb

NEW YORK (AP) — Keep America Beautiful Inc., estimates that American industry is now appropriating about $1 million a year to curb litter-bugs.

The national litter prevention organization also estimates that in the past decade business has spent a total of $6 to $8 million on antilitter activities. Annual expenditures have been increasing in recent years explained Allen H. Seed Jr., KAB’s executive vice president.

The money, he said is used to support organizations combating litter, to make antilitter movies for literature for schools and for various types of advertising.

KAB was established and is supported by large corporations and business organizations to fight litter by means of public education programs.

The AP budget brigade turned up a wide spread in prices for individual items from store to store in the same city. But by the time they had priced all the items on the list, the total tended to be about the same.

In Baltimore, for example, one store had an 89-cent special on sirloin steak while a second store charged $1.19. Nevertheless the checker's total bill was $20.57 in the first store, $20.59 in the other.

Reports by both sets of checkers indicated that pork prices, which had been in orbit for months, were beginning to level out or decline, although still far higher than a year ago.

Government checkers reported an average price of $11.17 for pork chops in Baltimore

compared with $11.77 in February and 93.2 cents in March 1965, $1.09.5 in Boston compared with $1.08.7 and $0.6 cents, $1.13.2 in Cleveland compared with $1.15.7 and 90.8 cents, and $1.07.6 in Detroit compared with $1.12.1 and 85 cents.

AP's budget brigade found their three-store average price for pork chops to be $11.77 in Baltimore, $11.17 in Boston, $11.13 in Cleveland and 99 cents in Detroit.

The tendency for food prices in general to level out was reflected in April statistics announced by the government a week ago showing that over-all food costs rose only .1 of 1 per cent over the March averages.

The AP budget brigade in general agreed that there are several ways to resist advancing prices. These include buying only the items on a prepared list, placing a limit on the total to be spent, eliminating luxuries and buying less expensive grades.

The AP's Detroit checker said advances in the processing of foods often beguile the shopper into spending more than she intended.

The Cleveland member of the team remarked that “so complete and elegant an array of prepared food now is on the market that I begin to suspect the cook may be done away with.”

The budget brigade said shopping in several stores saves money, but may prolong the chore of buying the groceries beyond that which a busy housewife can spare.

The Philadelphia checker said: “I find it necessary to devote considerably more time to shopping all three stores to take advantage of their loss leaders and determine which stores have the better values.”

The brigade's San Francisco housewife said she was surprised to find that “a market well known for its ‘low prices’ charged more for meat than another market considered high-priced for meat. This latter market was considerably lower in prices and its meat was superior.”

An analysis of the returns from the AP's surveyors showed that a housewife with unlimited time for shopping could have saved a substantial sum by ferreting out the lowest price for a given item at each of the three stores visited.

Thus the shopper in the Washington area ran up a bill averaging $20 for the 40 items priced. By switching from store to store she could have had them for $18.67.

The shopping list of the AP budget brigade included staple meats, fish and poultry, fruits, vegetables, canned goods, coffee, tea, sugar, eggs, butter, margarine, cheese, cereal and cold cuts.

The total bill by cities (government figure first) follows: Baltimore, $20.30 and $20.83; Boston, $32.10 and $21.06; Chicago $20.52 and $19.68; Cleveland, $19.67 and $18.77; Detroit, $19.82 and $19.53; Los Angeles, $20.38 and $19.02; New York, $20.68 and $20.10; Philadelphia, $20.42 and $19.89; Pittsburgh, $20.48 and $21.03; St. Louis, $20.43 and $20.43 (same); San Francisco, blond trail blazer by morning, a red-haired riot at noon, and by sundown a raven-haired homme fatale. And for the same reasons — a change of wigs.

Unlike his wife, he can be bald when he goes to bed.

Yet Mark Traynor, inventor of full-sized wigs, not toupees for men, claims he has as many satisfied customers with a full head of hair as he does mature gentlemen with glamorous craniums.

Not only do blonds have more fun, Traynor says any man does who changes the color of his tresses once in a while, especially if nature is beginning to brush up his real crop with gray.

Long-haired musicians — the rock 'n' roll kind — are also among Traynor's faithfuls. For a group of gyrating guitar strummers who consider a mop in motion essential to their image, and yet find curls during the daylight hours strictly for girls, Traynor grew a few wigs to shoulder length that swing with the beat.

Actually, Traynor, a spare young man with a burgeoning supply of blond hair grown on his own, is a make-up artist who did the wigs for men as a gag on Johnny Carson's television show. The response was so overwhelming from the long-haired, short-haired and no-haired men around the world that he was suddenly in a new business.

Columbia, a community to be built in Maryland between Baltimore and Washington, will have a lakefront amusement area modeled on Copenhagen's Tivoli.

Firms Seek Litter Curb

NEW YORK (AP) — Keep America Beautiful Inc. estimates that American industry is now appropriating about $1 million a year to curb litter-bugs.

The national litter - prevention organization also estimates that in the past decade business has spent a total of $6 to $8 million on antilitter activities. Annual expenditures have been increasing in recent years explained Allen H. Seed Jr., KAB's executive vice president.

The money, he said is used to support organizations combating litter, to make antilitter movies for literature for schools and for various types of advertising.

KAB was established and is supported by large corporations and business organizations to fight litter by means of public education programs.

Skirt Lengths Depend on Legs

CHICAGO (AP) — Women who are debating on how short to wear their skirts can take it from Janina, a Chicago fashion designer, that restrictions in fashion are dictated by good looks.

"The shape of a woman's legs — not her age — determines the length of her skirt," she said.

"A woman over 30 has reached her most exciting peak and can give her personality its fullest expression through her clothes."

Janina Lukas has been designing women's fashions in Europe and America for 15 years. Born in Poland, she was educated in Germany and Switzerland.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dieters are sometimes their own loudest critics.

Letters from dieters to the Duffy Mott food processors include these revelations:

One woman pasted her wedding picture on the refrigerator door.

Another pasted a picture of her husband on it.

One has a sign painted on the refrigerator, warning "Keep Out Fatty."

A dieter, the mother of triplets, put a picture of her babies on the refrigerator door with the printed words, "Don't Mom!"

And a man confided that he had cards near the refrigerator, and cupboards and snack bar as well, to say to himself, "You Coward."

Miss Dean Earns McPherson Award

Miss Linda Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Dean, 109 Highland Ave., a member of the 1966 Circleville High School graduating class, has been awarded a $500 merit scholarship to attend McPherson College at McPherson, Kan., beginning this fall.

The scholarship was awarded on the basis of high school academic performance and test scores.

The McPherson admissions office estimates 300 new freshmen may enroll at the college for the 1966-67 academic year. This would be a record total for freshmen enrollment.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Despite advances in birth control methods, a study group for the United Nations Children's Fund says abortion still appears to be the most widely used means in the world today.

"Illegal abortions are increasing in many places where families feel competing pressures between large numbers of surviving children and rising aspirations for them," says the report.

Drawn up by a team headed by Prof. William M. Schmidt of the Harvard School of Public Health and by Children's Fund executive director Henry Labouisse, the report recommended the U.N. Fund's participation in government family planning programs.

It was submitted to the annual session of the fund's executive board in Addis Ababa.

"Illegal abortion is a source of major concern," declared the report.

"It is accompanied by a high risk of complications. The risks are especially great for the large numbers of poor who resort to self-induced abortion or who are aborted by the inept and the untrained."

The study group noted that in the United States nearly half the maternal deaths in large cities are the result of illegal abortion.

Studies in Santiago, Chile, show one woman in every four has had at least one induced abortion.

"Most of these women are married, have living children and secured the abortion with the knowledge and consent of their husbands," says the report.

Australia, India, Korea, Nationalist China, Canada, the United States, and the countries of Western Europe and South America were cited as nations where illegal abortion is "practiced more or less widely."

The report says that in a number of countries legalized abortion is the leading method of birth control although most regard the wider spread of contraceptive methods as preferable.

Some other countries permit abortion for defined medical, eugenic and social reasons and for pregnancies resulting from sex crimes.

"Liberalization of restrictive abortion laws no doubt lessens or removes the guilt-producing shadow of clandestinity," says the report.

"It also greatly reduces the risk of complications."

In Japan and some countries of Eastern Europe, for example, the mortality rates are quite small, with risks actually significantly lower than those of childbirth.

But where liberal abortion policies are followed the total number of abortions often equal or exceed the number of live births, the report notes.

Spain Tops Foreign List In Portugal

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's neighbor Spain has more residents living here than any other nation.

The Spaniards, mostly engaged in the tourist and hotel industry, number 8,000. Many of them own fashionable cafes and night clubs.

The British take second place with 2,100 residents, and according to a recent survey by Lisbon's Diario Popular, "they acquired beautiful houses on the sea, made their own clubs and made their own circles nearly impenetrable. At the same time appreciating fine beverages, they helped the fame of port wine by buying big wineries in the north."

Cepeda, Wills Are Waving Potent Bats

Cardinal Ace Gets 4 Hits; Dodger Sprinter Homers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Orlando Cepeda is toting round the hottest bat in baseball but for slugging, how about little Maury Wills, who could be a threat to Babe Ruth's home run records if there were enough Memorial Days in the year.

Cepeda had a perfect night with a homer, two doubles and a single Monday and provided all the offense Bob Gibson needed as St. Louis' ace right-hander throttled Houston 3-1 on a three-hitter.

Wills led off Los Angeles victory over Atlanta with a home run—the 10th of his National League career and his first one since Aug. 31, 1964.

The sudden power shown by Wills was almost expectable. It was exactly four years ago—Memorial Day 1962—that the switch-hitting shortstop made it to the record book by hitting a homer from each side of the plate. Only six other National League batters have achieved that feat.

Cepeda's four hits gave him a string of seven over two games and raised his batting average to .330. The veteran first baseman, who came in a trade from San Francisco for pitcher Ray Sadecki, drove in two runs and scored the other as the Cardinals won their third straight.

Sadecki, meanwhile, turned in his first victory for the Giants, beating Cincinnati 8-4 on a five-hitter. Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from Chicago 3-2 and 5-3 with Roberto Clemente homering in each game, and Philadelphia split a pair with New York, winning 7-2 and losing 3-1.

In the American League, Chicago shut out Boston twice 1-0 and 11-0. California swept Cleveland 4-3 and 5-1. New York split with Washington, winning 4-2 and losing 2-1. Baltimore beat Minnesota 5-1 before losing 7-4 and Detroit whipped Kansas City 5-2.

Wills' homer started a 16-hit Dodger attack that included six doubles and three hits apiece by John Roseboro and Tommy Davis.

Cepeda doubled home Lou Brock in the first inning and then hammered his eighth homer of the season and fifth in 18 games with St. Louis in the fourth.

The big first baseman doubled again in the sixth and scored on Tim McCarver's single. Cepeda's eighth-inning single completed his perfect night.

Marr Chalks 70 In Golf Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Dave Marr has given some 100,000 golfers a tough score—par 70—to shoot at if they want to earn a "beat the champion" certificate from the PGA.

All entrants must record a score of one-under-par, including handicap, to beat Marr, who fired a 33-37-70 at the Firestone Country Club layout Monday to win National Golf Day's Round of Champions by one stroke over Gary Player.

Marr, PGA titleholder, toured the front nine of the 7,180-yard, par 70 course in two-under, but was two over on the last nine to break even. Player, U.S. Open champ from South Africa, finished 37-34-71 and kept hitting to his left on the front nine.

Annual Kiwanis Horse Show Has Top Field of Entries

The fifth annual Kiwanis Charity Horse Show conducted during the Memorial Day weekend featured an outstanding field of entries, according to E. R. (Tom) Bennett, general chairman.

Bennett noted the hunter and jumper classes this year were exceptionally good, although an earlier show had some effect of the other classes.

"We always have good horses," Bennett stated. "What we would like to see is more people in the grandstands."

With an eye toward increasing the gate, the Kiwanis horse show committee is already planning to expand next year's program to include more western classes.

Butterfly's Mr. Shadow, owned by Mr. and Mrs. George LeValley of New Holland was one of the outstanding local horses appearing in the show.

This colorful horse placed second in the three gaited over 15.2 class and fourth in the three gaited stake with Susan LeValley in the saddle, third in the three gaited amateur class with Marvin Reichelderfer as the rider and sixth in the three gaited class for junior riders with Gail Trecker as the rider.

Other local horses and riders winning trophies or ribbons in the two day show included:

Sue Pike riding Lady Ann owned by Nancy Christy of Amanda was third in English Pleasure for riders 18 and over. Marvin Reichelderfer, riding Gloria's Cynthia owned by Mr. and Mrs. George LeValley, was fourth and Sterling Poling astride his Edgewood's Valiant Lady, fifth.

Edith Allison riding her horse, My Luck Two, placed second in Western 4-H Horsemanship with Jackie Stewart of Kingston riding HoBo placing fourth and Marvin Clark riding Claire Joe, owned by Odra Wallace, placing sixth.

In western pleasure class Charles McDowell riding Socks placed second, Carl Shelpman astride Shiner Boy third and Marvin Clark riding Dude came in fourth.

The Senior Saddle Seat Class was won by Gail Trecker who placed third in the Stake Class. Marvin Clark astride Claire

In the three gaited full mane tail and tail class Susan LeValley riding Starburst owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bennett placed first, second place went to Marvin Reichelderfer riding Ann Juan, Edgewood Farm's Exotic Jeannie ridden by Sterling Poling was third and Lynn McCoy riding Katherine Genius was fourth.

Glory's Cynthia ridden by Marvin Reichelderfer for Mr. and Mrs. George LeValley placed third in the English Pleasure Horse Stake.

The Championship Stake honors went to Kathy Krueger in the Saddle Seat Stake, to Don Reinhart riding Keep Talking owned by Christine Butler of Columbus in the Three Gaited Stake, to Cinders owned and shown by Mrs. Rudolph McCul-

Miami Thinclads Win OU Affair

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Miami athletes won four of the 15 events and captured the team championship of the annual All-Ohio collegiate track and field meet Monday.

Jim Isaacson won the 880 in 1:50.7, Joel Vore the two-mile in 9:11.3, Jim Sibold the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.8 and Bill Downing the high jump in a meet record 6 feet 7 inches in leading the Redskins to the crown.

Miami compiled 111 points to 70 for runnerup Mt. Union. Ohio University had 61, defending champion Kent State 48, Central State 36, Ohio State 35, Baldwin-Wallace 26, Akron 24, Case Tech 20, Ohio Wesleyan 18, Bowling Green 15, Ashland 13, Otterbein 8 and Bluffton 1.

Teays Valley Youth Baseball Program To Start Today

The Teays Valley Youth Baseball program gets under way today with action scheduled in both the Little League and the Mosquito League.

At 7:30 p. m. the Redlegs and the Giants tangle on the Teays Valley High School diamond.

The Mosquito League game pits the Jets against the Chiefs. That tilt is slated 5:30 p. m. at the Ashville diamond.

Here is the schedule for the season:

Tribe Loses 2 Straight Twin Bills

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians should be more than ready to go back east after one more game against the California Angels.

The last two days of their trip West have been slightly less than disastrous—four straight losses in doubleheaders. The Minnesota Twins took two Sunday and the Angels did Monday, 4-3 and 5-1.

Luckily, the league leading Indians only lost one and a half games in the standing because Baltimore and Detroit haven't been able to cash in. The Tribe still leads the Orioles by three games and Detroit by 3½.

The Angels did it with power—homers by Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knopp, plus faltering relief pitching by the Indians and four errors in the second game. Fregosi broke a 3-3 tie in the bottom of the seventh in the opener to pin the loss on reliever Don McMahon (1-1). Knopp slammed a two-run homer in the fourth to settle the tiegame.

Dean Chance came on the sixth inning of the second game to save the victory for 27-year-old rookie right-hander Minnie Rojas, who was making his major league debut.

Sadecki Feels Great after Redlegs Fall

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ray Sadecki feels his 8-4 victory over night was just what he needed to settle down as a pitcher for the league-leading San Francisco Giants.

"I'm over the hump," the 25-year-old lefty said happily after the game. "And I like those runs we got tonight."

Sadecki, who had lost two games since being traded to San Francisco, said he "mixed fast balls with change-up" to beat the Reds who collected only five hits in nine innings while losing their third game in a row.

"You can't start aiming the ball in this small park," Sadecki observed. "But this was a better park in which to pitch tonight than Candlestick Park. Some of those balls caught in right field would have carried for homers because of the wind there."

Right fielder Alec Brown caught eight flies during the game and some of them were near the fence, but the Giants also slammed several balls in that direction.

Official '500' Scores Placed Under Review

BULLETIN
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)— Londoner Graham Hill was confirmed as winner of the 50th Indianapolis 500-mile race today in official standings released by timers and scorers.

The official standings were identical from top to bottom with unofficial results announced at the close of Monday's wreck-marred race.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Official scorers reviewed the tapes of electric timing devices today in an attempt to determine the winner of the Indianapolis 500, a role unofficially granted London's mustachioed Graham Hill and disputed by Jim Clark of Scotland.

They were the first two finishers in the Memorial Day Classic Monday, and two of only seven drivers still on the track when the accident-marred race ended.

A massive, flaming pile-up involving 16 of the 33 starters scattered wrecks over the track and sent wheels and parts spraying into the crowd after a mishap on the first turn. Miraculously, only one driver—A.J.
Foyt of Houston, Tex.—and 14 spectators received only minor injuries.

The 36-year-old Hill, making his first start in America's most prestigious auto race, was declared the winner after the track was cleared and the race restarted with the field trimmed to 22.

Clark's backers were quick to dispute it.

"It is impossible for Hill to be the winner," said Andrew Gran-atelli of Chicago, a part-owner of Clark's car. "We were a lap ahead of (Scot Jackie) Stewart and Hill was even farther behind. There's been an error."

Another Clark team member, Gene N. Spencer, a Midwest distributor of Lotus automobiles, also was quick to lodge a protest.

"I definitely believe there has been an error in the scoring," he said. "We know we won. We can't officially protest until Tuesday, but if the results are posted and show Hill the winner, we will protest immediately."

"But we believe that a check of the timing and scoring tapes will show we won."

At stake—aside from the enormous prestige—is about $200,000 in first prize money.
The problem is over the number of laps completed.

The tradition-shrouded race was fouled up from the beginning, when No. 1 starter Mario Andretti barely had crossed the starting line in the flying start before Billy Foster of Victoria, B.C., only Canadian in the line-up, collided with Gordon Johncock of Hastings, Mich. Foster said somebody crowded him.

That set off a spectacular chain reaction pile-up which eliminated 11 cars and wiped out such strong contenders as Foyt, Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., and Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif.

The race had to be restarted because of an impossible track, delaying the show an hour and 24 minutes. The only other wreck-caused restart was two years ago after drivers Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald were killed in a flaming second-lap pile-up.

The numerically worst previous accident, the 15 car wreck in the first lap in 1958, left driver Pat O'Connor dead in a burning car.

European road racers in the field, Hill and Gurney in particular, criticized the bunched, flying start which sets up chain reaction wrecks.

"We generally do not have these chain reaction type accidents on the Grand Prix circuit, where we begin from a standing start," said Hill, a rookie at Indianapolis but a former world road racing champion. The field quickly strings out after a standing start.

Only 17 cars were left for the single file restart. Five others waited in the pits for minor repairs.

Of the 22 cars that finally got rolling, four others were eliminated by wrecks of drivers
Johnny Boyd, Fresno, Calif.; Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M.; and a collision of George Snider, Fresno and Chuck Hulse, Dowrey, Calif. None was hurt.

The 11 other failures went out with assorted mechanical troubles, including leaders Andretti, broken valve; Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., oil leak, and Stewart oil pressure failure.

Stewart almost added the Indianapolis 500 to his May 22
Monaco Grand Prix victory, leading the field by more than a lap at one time before his Lola-Ford failed with 25 miles to go.

Hill also drove an English-American hybrid Lola-Ford, owned by John Mecum Jr. of Houston.

Ruby made America's best showing. He took the lead from Clark three times in the first three-quarters of the race, two when the hard-pressed Scot went into spins—both times without hitting anything—and only one lap of finishing when mainstretch.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex., finished third in a Gerhardt-Ford. Rookie Mel Kenyon of Davenport, Iowa, who lost most of his left hand in a racing accident last year, was awarded fifth place, highest for an Offenhauser-powered car, and lacked only one lap of finish when the race was declared ended.

Johncock was fourth.

ROUNDTOWN WINNERS — Circleville horsemen twice entered the winner's circle at Scioto Downs Monday. In the upper
the sixth race in 2:06 2/5. James Arledge, behind Dane Chief, won the seventh, pacing the mile in 2:08 3/5. The lower photo shows Arledge edging Rocky Supreme, driven by Ebenhack, at the wire.

Official '500' Scores Placed Under Review

BULLETIN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Londoner Graham Hill was confirmed as winner of the 50th Indianapolis 500-mile race today in official standings released by timers and scorers.

The official standings were identical from top to bottom with unofficial results announced at the close of Monday's wreck-marred race.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Official scorers reviewed the tapes of electric timing devices today in an attempt to determine the winner of the Indianapolis 500, a role unofficially granted London's mustachioed Graham Hill and disputed by Jim Clark of Scotland.

They were the first two finishers in the Memorial Day Classic Monday, and two of only seven drivers still on the track when the accident-marred race ended.

A massive, flaming pile-up involving 16 of the 33 starters scattered wrecks over the track and sent wheels and parts spraying into the crowd after a mishap on the first turn. Miraculously, only one driver—A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex.—and 14 spectators received only minor injuries.

The 36-year-old Hill, making his first start in America's most prestigious auto race, was declared the winner after the track was cleared and the race restarted with the field trimmed to 22.

Clark's backers were quick to dispute it.

"It is impossible for Hill to be the winner," said Andrew Granatelli of Chicago, a part-owner of Clark's car. "We were a lap ahead of (Scot Jackie) Stewart and Hill was even farther behind. There's been an error."

Another Clark team member, Gene N. Spencer, a Midwest distributor of Lotus automobiles, also was quick to lodge a protest.

"I definitely believe there has been an error in the scoring," he said. "We know we won. We can't officially protest until Tuesday, but if the results are posted and show Hill the winner, we will protest immediately."

"But we believe that a check of the timing and scoring tapes will show we won."

At stake—aside from the enormous prestige—is about $500,000 in first prize money. The problem is over the number of laps completed.

The tradition-shrouded race was fouled up from the beginning, when No. 1 starter Mario Andretti barely had crossed the starting line in the flying start before Billy Foster of Victoria, B.C., only Canadian in the line-up, collided with Gordon Johncock of Hastings, Mich. Foster said somebody crowded him.

That set off a spectacular chain reaction pile-up which eliminated 11 cars and wiped out such strong contenders as Foyt, Don Branson, Champaign, Ill., and Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif.

The race had to be restarted because of an impassable track, delaying the show an hour and 24 minutes. The only other wreck-caused restart was two years ago after drivers Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald were killed in a flaming second-lap pile-up.

The numerically worst previous accident, the 15 car wreck in the first lap in 1958, left driver Pat O'Connor dead in a burning car.

European road racers in the field, Hill and Gurney in particular, criticized the bunched, flying start which sets up chain reaction wrecks.

"We generally do not have these chain reaction type accidents on the Grand Prix circuit, where we begin from a standing start," said Hill, a rookie at Indianapolis but a former world road racing champion. The field quickly strings out after a standing start.

Only 17 cars were left for the single file restart. Five others waited in the pits for minor repairs.

Of the 22 cars that finally got rolling, four others were eliminated by wrecks of drivers Johnny Boyd, Fresno, Calif.; Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., and a collision of George Snider, Fresno and Chuck Hulse, Downey, Calif. None was hurt.

The 11 other failures went out with assorted mechanical troubles, including leaders Andretti, broken valve; Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., oil leak, and Stewart oil pressure failure.

Stewart almost added the Indianapolis 500 to his May 22 Monaco Grand Prix victory, leading the field by more than a lap at one time before his Lola-Ford failed with 25 miles to go.

Hill also drove an English-American hybrid Lola-Ford, owned by John Mecom Jr. of Houston.

Ruby made America's best showing. He took the lead from Clark three times in the first three-quarters of the race, two when the hard-pressed Scot went into spins—both times without hitting anything—and only one lap of finishing when mainstretch.

Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex., finished third in a Gerhardt-Ford. Rookie Mel Kenyon of Davenport, Iowa, who lost most of his left hand in a racing accident last year, was awarded fifth place, highest for an Offenhauser-powered car, and lacked only one lap of finishing when the race was declared ended. Johncock was fourth.

Lourdes - - Pilgrimage Goal

A continuous procession of wheelchairs and stretcher beds comes and goes at Lourdes' grotto.

By JANNY BROWN

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper
NO LESS SPECTACULAR because it has been going on for years, the pilgrimage to Lourdes, in France, rivals, if it does not exceed, that of any religious pilgrimage or expedition since the Crusades. Where traditional pilgrimages cause great upheavals once a year or once every 100 years to important religious sites in the Christian and Moslem world, as well as within minor religions, the pilgrimage to Lourdes, high up in the French Pyrenees, goes on every day of the year.

The month of February is dedicated specially to these pilgrimages for it was in this month that a little village girl named Bernadette Soubirous began seeing visions of the Virgin Mary while she was gathering firewood on a hillside with some other children. The most important of these visions came when Mary appeared on a ledge in a rocky grotto on the hillside and talked to Bernadette. During this talk she made a promise to help the believer and the needy.

ALTHOUGH many were quick to believe, there were those who were skeptical or downright unbelieving. But one fact could not be dismissed by the unbelievers. From the foot of the ledge where Bernadette saw the vision a small trickle of water appeared, which gradually grew into a rivulet. When a dying boy was bathed in this water as a last resort the boy suddenly recovered, to the astonishment of everyone—even the believers.

The news spread like wildfire and religious history was made. From Asia, the Americas, the Arctic Circle even, as well as Europe and Africa, wherever there was a Christian, people traveled to make the pilgrimage to Lourdes.

Since that first small boy's cure after Bernadette saw the visions there have been other outstanding cures in the miracle class. Panels of doctors and scientists, most of them non-Catholics, have verified these cures and have found no explanation for them.

THE CURES do not come many at a time and frequently sometimes one cure in one day, one a month, or even a year—the spectacular ones, that is. But when the cure comes it is always dramatic in suddenness and quite unexplainable (although there have been less spectacular and more frequent cures).

There is no attraction on the Earth—despite difference in sect or religion, or lack of it—greater than the hope of regaining health. The sick Catholic, Protestant, Moslem, Hindu will grasp at any straw if there is a glimmer of hope at the other end, no matter who holds the straw.

THEY all come; the faithful believers, the lukewarm, and the non-believers just in case something really happens and they are the chosen. The lukewarm and non-believers come as a last desperate bid for life in the face of oncoming death.

They have heard of cures in other faiths where there was belief. So they force themselves to believe. Never is belief and faith more purposely rammed into a system by extreme need.

The recent Ecumenical Council in the Vatican adopted an attitude of restraint in fervor concerning Mary, the mother of Jesus, with a nod toward the Protestant side of Christianity. This has been received with unanimous but silent dissent by Catholics, although a few raised voices have been heard.

The future generations, perhaps, may find this attitude easy to assume; but the past and present generations of Catholics may not take to it as easily. Not while the pilgrimages are going on.

Man Hurt In Unusual Auto Mishap

A Columbus man was seriously injured yesterday in an automobile accident that occurred at the intersection of County Road 500 and Route 62.

Pickaway County Sheriff John Wolford reported that Kenneth Paul Mullins, Columbus, underwent extensive surgery yesterday as a result of injuries sustained in the unusual accident.

Wolford has been able to piece together the following account of the mishap.

An automobile owned by Roy Brewster, 29, Columbus, stalled on county road 500 just north of Era. The auto was parked along the right side of the road, and Brewster and Mullins had raised the hood and were working on the motor of the vehicle.

An automobile driven by Otis Beecher Core, 64, Washington C. H., was parked on the opposite side of the road.

Core's car suddenly started, swerved across the road, hitting the stalled vehicle. Brewster was thrown clear of the vehicles by the impact and sustained lacerations and abrasions.

Mullins was hit by one of the cars and sustained multiple fractures of the left leg and other injuries.

The accident is still under investigation.

Anderson Promoted To Sergeant

Police Chief Robert Temple announced today that Patrolman Richard Anderson has been promoted to sergeant.

Anderson will serve as sergeant of the 3 to 11 p. m. shift. His new duty is effective.

Sgt. Leroy Hawks is being transferred to the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift to replace Sgt. Turney Ross whose retirement is effective tomorrow.

Sgt. Roderick List remains on the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift.

City Police Check Crash Of 3 Autos

Circleville Police today reported one person suffered slight injuries in a three-car collision at N. Court St. and Northridge Road at 11 a. m. Monday.

Police reported Diana Crabtree, 19, of 404 Stella Ave., was stopped at the intersection. Charles Schieber had stopped behind her car.

Schieber's vehicle was struck in the rear by one driven by Linda Kay Imler, forcing it into the first auto.

Mrs. Rosemary Crabtree, 38, a passenger, suffered a possible neck injury, according to police.

Building Damaged At Ted Lewis Park

Jack McGuire of the Circleville Park Board told Circleville Police that extensive damage was inflicted in restrooms at Ted Lewis Park during the weekend by vandals.

Navy Man Tries To Sell U.S. Secrets to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy serviceman assigned to routine duties in a "top secret" area methodically collected highly sensitive information and tried to sell it to the Soviets, it was learned today.

As a result, the Navy is tightening its security system around the world.

The Navy turned aside all questions about the case by saying that it is "under active investigation" and that "other details are classified."

Since the man involved held a secret clearance, it can be assumed that he had undergone a fairly stringent security check beforehand.

There was no indication of the specific nature of the material he tried to sell or whether the Soviets bought it. On these points, too, the Navy refused to talk.

The previously undisclosed case came to light in a notice to all ships and stations signed by Rear Adm. Rufus L. Taylor, director of the Office of Naval Intelligence.

The notice was intended, it said, to advise commanders "of the danger inherent in our

It went on to say that "as a result of a recent case involving the compromise of classified material, a weakness in our security system was brought to the attention of the chief of naval operations."

Then it told the story, without giving any names or indication of where the espionage incident occurred.

It said a serviceman who had duties as a "watch stander," officer supply clerk, and repair-

Further, the commanders were told, the authorized personnel "failed to challenge his need-to-know."

"In this case he contacted the Soviets with the intent of engaging in espionage for a monetary gain."

Mrs. K Says Nikita Has Quiet Life

MOSCOW (AP) — Nina Khrushchev says she and Nikita are leading a quiet life in the country and the ousted Soviet leader spends a lot of time reading and walking.

Three British newsmen ran into Mrs. Khrushchev Monday at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport where she was saying goodbye to a niece going to Cuba. She gave the first authoritative account of Khrushchev's life in many months.

Khrushchev, 72, was replaced in October 1964, pensioned and given a villa outside Moscow. He has not been seen by Westerners in more than a year.

Mrs. Khrushchev confirmed reports that her husband had been through a long siege of kidney trouble but said he has made "an astonishing recovery."

"He was in the hospital twice, but he has fully recovered and is fit and well," she said.

"We live quietly these days. Our old friends come to see us from time to time. And we have our family out, of course."

Mrs. Khrushchev, who is 66, talked readily in English and seemed to enjoy the encounter with the newsmen. She looked well and somewhat thinner.

Russians in the crowded terminal took no outward notice of her.

Envoy Says U.S. Now Using 'Soft Voice'

GAMBIER, Ohio (AP) — United States foreign policy is not of black and white but of hard and soft lines, according to Harlan Cleveland, U.S. ambassador to NATO.

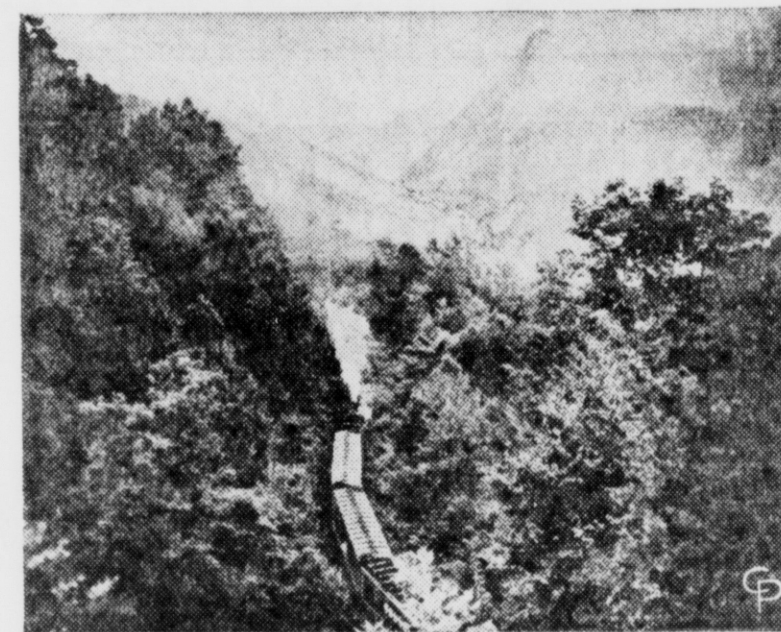

He made that assessment Monday in his commencement speech at Kenyon College and its 145 new graduates.

"The United States has found that a soft voice and low key work best" in international relations, he added in his address entitled "New Styles in Leadership."

Truly primitive tribes survive only in parts of Australia, central New Guinea and the jungles of South America.

Steam Railroads Are for Tourists

The steam railroad winds its way through scenic regions of the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina.

By SANDO BOLOGNA

Central Press Association Correspondent

FONTANA VILLAGE, N.C.—A sentimental journey aboard a steam railroad will be inaugurated June 1 as the newest sight-seeing attraction in North Carolina.

With the nostalgic call, "All Aboard," the railroad train puffs over a nine-mile round trip through some of the most picturesque sections of the Great Smoky Mountains.

Besides watching steam and cinders flying, the passengers are treated to a relaxing trip over part of the 12-mile, single-track, standard-gauge roadbed of the Graham County Railroad Co., which was laid in 1925 for lumber-hauling between Robinsville and Topton, where it connects with the Southern Railroad track.

The daily train trips are designed to accommodate some of the millions of visitors who come to Western North Carolina every year.

The rail line is near the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Fontana Village Resort and Fontana Dam, Joyce Kilmer National Memorial Forest, and Nantahala National Forest.

All trips originate and end at the building which is patterned after a Southern Railway station at Scottsboro, Ala. A pot-bellied stove is among the "antique" fixtures in the large waiting room.

Near the station is a railroad museum contained within an old dining car of the Nickel Plate Railroad and six Pullman coaches. Luncheons and dinners are served in the old diner. The other cars are used for display of railroadiana. Three Shay steam engines are on a side-track for inspection purposes.

Power for the railroad train is generated by two 70-ton Shay locomotives.

Ohio Mine Law Is To Be Tighter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tightening of enforcement of Ohio's new and generally stiffer strip mine regulations, boosting the investigating staff from five to eight men, and realignment of districts, has been announced by the Department of Natural Resources.

Irving I. Dickman, chief of the Division of Reclamation, pointed out that regulations adopted by the last legislature, among other things, gave the division supervision over actual strip mine operations it never had previously.

Meanwhile, Fred Morr, director of the Department of Natural Resources, has been studying prospects for the $9,000-a-year post as chief of the strip mine investigation teams. He expects to announce an appointment by mid June.

Equipment Damaged

Orville West, 551 Springhollow Road, told the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department construction equipment he owned was damaged by .22 caliber rifle bullets.

The equipment was parked near the Pittsburg Plate Glass plant south of Circleville.

Ohio Man's Death on Boat Probed

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — An autopsy was scheduled today in an attempt to determine what caused Harry O. Donnelly, 64, of Fairlawn, Ohio, to die after he and his wife were taken unconscious off a beached yacht.

Donnelly and his wife, Louise, 71, of suburban Akron were brought to Memorial Hospital Sunday and he died Monday.

The Toledo Coast Guard Station said the couple's Lake Erie cabin cruiser, normally berthed at Sandusky, Ohio, was found aground Saturday night in the Toledo Beach marina area. At that time, the Donnellys were offered a ride ashore but declined, deciding to await a tow boat the next day.

The next day when the Coast Guard came by both were unconscious and suffering exposure.

In Unusual Auto Mishap

A Columbus man was seriously injured yesterday in an automobile accident that occurred at the intersection of County Road 500 and Route 62.

Pickaway County Sheriff John Wolford reported that Kenneth Paul Mullins, Columbus, underwent extensive surgery yesterday as a result of injuries sustained in the unusual accident.

Wolford has been able to piece together the following account of the mishap.

An automobile owned by Roy Brewster, 29, Columbus, stalled on county road 500 just north of Era. The auto was parked along the right side of the road, and Brewster and Mullins had raised the hood and were working on the motor of the vehicle.

An automobile driven by Otis Beecher Core, 64, Washington C. H., was parked on the opposite side of the road.

Core's car suddenly started, swerved across the road, hitting the stalled vehicle. Brewster was thrown clear of the vehicles by the impact and sustained lacerations and abrasions.

Mullins was hit by one of the cars and sustained multiple fractures of the left leg and other injuries.

Anderson Promoted To Sergeant

Police Chief Robert Temple announced today that Patrolman Richard Anderson has been promoted to sergeant.

Anderson will serve as sergeant of the 3 to 11 p. m. shift. His new duty is effective.

Sgt. Leroy Hawks is being transferred to the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift to replace Sgt. Turney Ross whose retirement is effective tomorrow.

Sgt. Roderick List remains on the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift.

Two Youths Uninjured in Office Blaze

Two youths escaped injury early Sunday morning when gasoline which they threw on a fire exploded, setting an office ablaze at McFarland's Airport, Route 3.

The youths were Clark McFarland, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark McFarland, and Larry Selby, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Selby.

The two boys had planned to camp along Darby Creek Saturday night, according to information obtained by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff John Wolford.

According to Wolford, the boys became cold during the night and entered the small building used as an office. They built a fire in a stove. When the fire died down, they picked up a container which they thought was full of oil to throw on the fire. However, the container was filled with gasoline.

The resulting explosion blew young McFarland out of the building. Selby was trapped between a rear wall and the front door by the fire.

Sheriff Wolford was told the youth threw a blanket over himself and dashed through the flames to escape.

The building was destroyed. The Ashville-Harrison Volunteer fire department was called to the scene.

Navy Man Tries To Sell U.S. Secrets to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy serviceman assigned to routine duties in a "top secret" area methodically collected highly sensitive information and tried to sell it to the Soviets, it was learned today.

As a result, the Navy is tightening its security system around the world.

details are classified."

Since the man involved held a secret clearance, it can be assumed that he had undergone a fairly stringent security check beforehand.

There was no indication of the specific nature of the material he tried to sell or whether the Soviets bought it. On these points, too, the Navy refused to talk.

The previously undisclosed case came to light in a notice to all ships and stations signed by Rear Adm. Rufus L. Taylor, director of the Office of Naval Intelligence.

The notice was intended, it said, to advise commanders "of the danger inherent in our

Then it told the story, without giving any names or indication of where the espionage incident occurred.

It said a serviceman who had duties as a "watch stander," officer supply clerk, and repairman was placed on a list permitting access to spaces where top secret information was discussed.

As a result of his frequent appearances in the sensitive spaces, the notice said, "authorized personnel assumed that he held a top secret clearance."

Further, the commanders were told, the authorized personnel "failed to challenge his need-to-know."

"Through observation and pertinent questions, the serviceman managed to collect and collate information classified top secret," it added.

Steam Railroads Are for Tourists

The steam railroad winds its way through scenic regions of the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina.

By SANDO BOLOGNA

Central Press Association Correspondent

FONTANA VILLAGE, N.C.—A sentimental journey aboard a steam railroad will be inaugurated June 1 as the newest sight-seeing attraction in North Carolina.

With the nostalgic call, "All Aboard," the railroad train puffs over a nine-mile round trip through some of the most picturesque sections of the Great Smoky Mountains.

Besides watching steam and cinders flying, the passengers are treated to a relaxing trip over part of the 12-mile, single-track, standard-gauge roadbed of the Graham County Railroad Co., which was laid in 1925 for lumber-hauling between Robbinsville and Topton, where it connects with the Southern Railroad track.

The daily train trips are designed to accommodate some of the millions of visitors who come to Western North Carolina every year.

The rail line is near the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Fontana Village Resort and Fontana Dam, Joyce Kilmer National Memorial Forest, and Nantahala National Forest.

A large railroad terminal has been constructed in Nantahala National Forest with the architectural features of the early 1900s, when steam railroads were the principal means of land transportation.

All trips originate and end at the building which is patterned after a Southern Railway station at Scottsboro, Ala. A pot-bellied stove is among the "antique" fixtures in the large waiting room.

Near the station is a railroad museum contained within an old dining car of the Nickel Plate Railroad and six Pullman coaches. Luncheons and dinners are served in the old diner. The other cars are used for display of railroadiana. Three Shay steam engines are on a side-track for inspection purposes.

Power for the railroad train is generated by two 70-ton Shay locomotives.

Ohio Mine Law Is To Be Tighter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tightening of enforcement of Ohio's new and generally stiffer strip mine regulations, boosting the investigating staff from five to eight men, and realignment of districts, has been announced by the Department of Natural Resources.

Irving I. Dickman, chief of the Division of Reclamation, pointed out that regulations adopted by the last legislature, among other things, gave the division supervision over actual strip mine operations it never had previously.

Effective Wednesday three new inspectors are assigned to realigned districts to further clamp down and uncover boot-leg operators who violate the laws of restoration.

Meanwhile, Fred Morr, director of the Department of Natural Resources, has been studying prospects for the $9,000-a-year post as chief of the strip mine investigation teams. He expects to announce an appointment by mid June.

Equipment Damaged

Orville West, 551 Springhollow Road, told the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department construction equipment he owned was damaged by .22 caliber rifle bullets.

The equipment was parked near the Pittsburg Plate Glass plant south of Circleville.
